Busy Uncle Sam
Poisoning Alcohol
Three to the Electric Chair
A Real Miracle

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Uncle Sam is enjoying busy, almost warlike, days. By special request his soldiers in Nicaragua are protecting citizens of other nations—presumably in danger.

IN CHINA the thing is more serious. The natives hate strangers as cats hate dogs. They are tired of watching foreigners spend money, having courts and territory of their own, and are glad when the time comes to murder a few. The murdering seems to be close at hand.

UNCLE SAM has some of his ships there, and unpleasant news may be expected.

After the Boxer rebellion, when the other nations compelled the Chinese to pay millions in damages, this nation handed the money back.

But that won't help our popularity. When Europe was in trouble, Uncle Sam sent an army of two million men, five thousand million dollars, and other thousands of millions since.

And in Europe they hate Uncle Sam and love wise Japan that never sent a dollar or a soldier.

WHAT WILL Uncle Sam do about industrial alcohol? At present he puts poison in it, and many of his beloved citizens, that don't know enough to let bootleg whiskey alone, are dying. Bootleggers redistill the poison-

ATLANTIC SPANNED BY VOICES AS NEW TRIUMPH IS SCORED BY SCIENCE

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

New York, Jan. 7.—The voice of the Old World sounded across the Atlantic today and the voice of the New World echoed back.

At 8:44 o'clock today commercial radio-telephone service was inaugurated for the first time in history between New York and London.

The telephone conversation lasted five minutes and parties at both ends heard each other distinctly, although there was some static.

The buzz of a telephone heralded a new stage—in communication between the two worlds, a step that is a far cry from the days when letters sent by clipper ships, speaking across them, took four weeks, were the only means of communication, a step that is even far in advance of the instantaneous cable flashes, the radio

SHE DISAPPEARS LEAVING TROUSSEAU UNTOUCHED

Millicent M. Gabrielson, 26, of Malden, who disappeared from her home on the last day of 1926, leaving an elaborate trousseau all ready for her wedding next February to Edward Gibbs, 30 years her senior, of Cliftondale. Her mother saw her talking to her brother in the street that day. She has not been seen since. Her fiance is aiding police in the search for her.

COURTHOUSE 'CHAIR AND DESK GRAFT' PROBE IS LAUNCHED BY FIN. COM.

One more chair and desk scandal, this one involving the new Dorchester Courthouse and $20,000, was born today at City Hall, when "good information" let it out that the Finance Commission has begun an investigation.

According to certain individuals at the hall, the alleged "scandal" will overtop that of a year ago when the Finance Commission became all worked up over the furnishings for the new City Council chamber.

The alleged "graft" involves a well-known office supply company. Already the officials of this company appeared before the finance commission and have been examined.

The investigation followed bids submitted to the city for the furnishing of office equipment for the new courthouse. One bid called for the expenditure of $14,000 and the other for $6,000.

It is known that a certain salesman engaged in the office supply line had bid the list price on furniture and fixtures to the city with the intention of buying the material at wholesale prices, thus dragging down the profit.

The concern with whom he was to do business, however, felt that it was a pretty good contract to get in on, so the members of the concern submitted bids themselves at lower figures than those submitted by the salesman.

The situation was later brought to the attention of the Finance Commission.

Mulhall and Holmes, architects for the new courthouse, have had a representative of their concern before the commission.

The Dorchester Courthouse when completed, will have cost about $500,000. It comes under supervision of the Public Buildings Department, of which John F. Engler is superintendent.

The furniture scandal of a year ago, over the furnishings for the new council chamber, involved some $16,000 and came under the same department.

MOTHER BLAMES SON AS BRIDE-TO-BE VANISHES

A brother's objection to a May and December marriage for his favorite sister is given as the reason for the mysterious disappearance of Miss Millicent M. Gabrielson, Malden beauty and bride-to-be of Edward Gibbs, 66, a Cliftondale real estate operator.

The brother, Raphael, married and a resident of the Maplewood section of Malden, is accused by his mother, Mrs. Almyra Gabrielson, a well known music teacher of Ferry street, Malden, and by Gibbs of not only trying to prevent the wedding set for February 9, but of influencing the girl to leave her home.

"I know Raphael is at the bottom of it all," declared Mrs. Gabrielson to a Boston Evening American reporter.

FIANCE IN HUNT.

"Raphael told me Millicent would never marry me," asserted Gibbs, who was at the Gabrielson home today making every effort money affords to find his fiancee. Both looked mournfully at Millicent's wedding trousseau, the new gowns, shoes, and other dainty things that

POLICE AND HIJACKS IN GUN FIGHT; 1 DYING

New Bedford, Jan. 7.—One man is dying with a bullet lodged near his brain and 15 men are under arrest as suspicious persons as a result of a triple-headed gun battle between supposed hi-jackers, rum-runners and the police on the old Burgess farm in North Dartmouth.

The victim of the shooting is Jack Burgo, No. 9 Bedford street, a Cape Verde cook employed at the Burgess place. He is at St. Luke's Hospital, wher he was taken when the gun battle in North Dartmouth was at its height. Little hope is held out for his recovery.

The police officers barely escaped the same fate, the bullets plowing through their clothing.

Reinforced by a detail of New Bedford bluecoats, the Dartmouth police rounded up twelve men in a garage just over the city line early today. At the same time several rifles, repeating shotguns and au-

BORAH AND KELLOGG IN FIGHT OVER NICARAGUA

Washington, Jan. 7 (I.N.S.).—The front steps of the White House were turned today into an impromptu debating ground for the airing of conflicting opinions concerning American intervention in Nicaragua, as between Secretary of State Kellogg and Senator Borah (R.) of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Borah, after a conference with President Coolidge, emerged from the White House and, after expressing the opinion that the State Department had erred in recognizing the Diaz government, said:

"We have no business in Nicaragua."

Secretary of State Kellogg, emerging after the Cabinet meeting, said:

PUTTING THROUGH THE CALL
A central operator in New York shows how trans-Atlantic phones are handled. She is calling the switchboard at Rocky Point, Long Island, and is checking on the calculograph the time. It is just like making an ordinary long distance call.

AT HOULTON, ME.
This receiving station at Houlton is connected by wire with New York. When an incoming call is received the station calls New York and the call is completed.

HOW ATLANTIC WAS SPANNED TODAY
Western bound messages were carried from London to Rugby by wire and then flashed through the air 2990 miles to Houlton, Me., to be relayed to New York by wire. Eastbound messages went on the air at Rocky Point, L. I., to be picked up at Wroughton and relayed to London.

RECORD ANTENNA WAS USED
To span the Atlantic a 7250 foot antenna was used and the entire operation was completed in about ten minutes. This antenna flashed the messages 3350 miles to Wroughton, England.

VOICE SPANS ATLANTIC
Walter S. Gifford of Salem, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, opened the service when he talked with the secretary of the British Postoffice.

waves and the six-day ocean greyhounds that have afforded communication up to today.

The price of the new trans-ocean telephone service is $25 a minute.

The New York and London stations were tuned in at 3:43 1-2. At 3:44 o'clock London and New York were ready to talk.

Walter S. Gifford, of Salem, Mass., president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, sitting in the Telephone company's office in New York, talked with Sir G. Evelyn P. Murray, secretary of the General Post Office of Great Britain, for two minutes.

Then Sir Evelyn Murray, in London, talked to Gifford for three minutes.

"We could hear each other clearly," said Gifford, "although there was more static than during previous tests."

There was no blare of trumpets to the epoch-making ceremony. It was a simply staged affair—sixty members of the official "family" of the American Telegraph & Telephone Company and a dozen newspapermen clustered quietly around a green baize table in the directors' room.

VOICES SPAN ATLANTIC.

Twenty headpieces before an equal number of chairs around the table permitted the more fortunate occupants to share in this scientific achievement.

After an introductory address by Gifford to those present giving a history of the research work over a period of twenty-two years which attained its successful climax today, he picked up the receiver of an ordinary telephone before him at the head of the table.

His guests, including the International News Service correspondent, adjusted their earpieces.

GREETINGS ARE EXCHANGED.

"Hello," said Gifford quietly. "Will you give me Sir Evelyn Murray, secretary of the British postoffice in London, please."

There was a pause of a split second.

"Is that Mr. Gifford?" came a voice with an unmistakable British accent over the wire. It was 3:44 a. m.

They said it came from London, but it sounded no further away than telephoning one's grocer.

"Good morning, Sir Evelyn," said Gifford.

"I beg pardon, sir."

"I said good morning. Can you hear all right, sir?"

"Yes, yes," answered Sir Evelyn. Gifford told Sir Evelyn that the opening of this telephonic channel of speech between New York and London would permit individuals to exchange views across the ocean and transact business instantly "as though they were face to face."

"No one can foresee the ultimate significance of this latest achievement of science and organization," he radiophoned. "It will certainly facilitate business. It will be a social convenience and comfort, and through the closer bond which it establishes, it will promote better understanding and strengthen the ties of friendship."

After Gifford concluded with congratulating Sir Evelyn and his staff for the solution of the problems on the British side of the new trans-oceanic communication system, Sir Evelyn replied.

Sir Evelyn termed the new service as a boon to both nations "whether as an aid to commerce or a medium of social and domestic intercourse."

"We recognise, as we believe you recognise, that there are difficulties still to be overcome before the trans-Atlantic service can attain the standard of regularity and reliability at which we aim," radiophoned Sir Evelyn.

"But we are convinced that there is no better means of solving these difficulties than by putting the service to the crucial test of daily use, and we hope that before long trans-Atlantic conversation will be available not only to the citizens of London and New York but to every telephone subscriber in both countries."

After responding to the greetings of Gifford, Sir Evelyn said:

"I now declare the service opened to the public."

Shortly after the opening of the circuit between Gifford and Sir Evelyn, static could be heard.

LONDON HEARD PLAINLY.

It was a sound like a pair of dice rattling in a wooden box and for seconds at a time made the transoceanic conversation inaudible. But for the majority of the experiment the voice from London was distinct.

After the opening greetings had been exchanged the service was opened to the regular commercial business. The name of the person sending the first regular message was not revealed.

The first hour and a quarter of the service saw ten calls completed from the English side, netting approximately $1,875 in tolls. An equal number of calls were understood to have been completed from the American side.

After some two hours of message sending service was temporarily discontinued due to heavy static. It was planned to resume communication later in the day.

Hub Must Wait Awhile to Talk to London

Some time in the future Boston will be able to converse with London on the tiephone, but that time is not yet. Thus far only New York can converse with London, but Thomas J. Feeney of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company believes that in time such service will be extended to Boston.

Message No. 1 From U. S. Oversea to London

HERE is what was said in the first phone message across the Atlantic:

"Hello," said W. S. Gifford quietly. "Will you give me Sir Evelyn Murray, secretary of the British Postoffice in London, please."

There was a pause of a split second.

"Is that Mr. Gifford?" came a voice with an unmistakable British accent over the wire. It was 3:44 a. m.

They said it came from London, but it sounded no further away than telephoning one's grocer.

"Good morning, Sir Evelyn," said Gifford.

"I beg pardon, sir."

"I said 'Good morning.' Can you hear all right, sir?"

"Yes, yes," answered Sir Evelyn.

For a period of five minutes the two talked across the 3,000 odd miles of ocean, Gifford using two minutes, Sir Evelyn three minutes.

OCEAN PHONE TALK RELAYED THROUGH HUB

A telephone repeater on the sixth floor of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company's building, No. 125 Milk street, was Boston's contribution to the success of the first commercial transoceanic radio telephone service.

About one-fiftieth of a second after Sir Evelyn Gifford, through the transmitter in London, replied to the greeting of Walter S. Gifford of Salem, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the words were flashing through the repeater.

The device picked up the speeding voice, amplifying it and giving it new energy for its journey to Worcester, the next point of amplification. No extra apparatus was needed in the Boston office to carry the assignment.

A faint light glowing under the repeater showed that sufficient current flowed through to insure perfect transmission and an attendant stood by prepared to make adjustments if the light indicated a weakening current.

London Office Has Calls Booked for First 2 Days

London, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Long and painstaking preparations led to the success of the trans-Atlantic radiophone, commercial service of which opened today, a British postoffice official told the Daily Mail.

"It is only fair to state that our American friends played a very great part in making the new service possible," he added. "They began experimenting years before we became actively interested, and their efforts have been an inspiration to us all along."

Calls sufficient to occupy the service for at least two days were booked prior to the opening.

Ever since the trans-Atlantic telephoning experiments have been reaching perfection, radio operators on ships having powerful sets, have spent their odd hours listening to the words floating between New York and London, it was learned today from radio operators.

The operators dubbed the trick, during which the experiments were usually carried on, "listening to what the wild waves are saying." Most of the United States lines vessels were able to pick up parts of the conversations, operators said.

First News by Phone From Oversea Says Wales Is Coming

New York, Jan. 7.—Soon after the first words were sent over the telephone from this city to London, the first news message was received here, sent from the London Bureau to the Associated Press. It was as follows:

Official announcement that the Prince of Wales will visit Canada and the United States next Summer is expected to be made at Ottawa, Canada, soon. The Prince of Wales desires to accept the Canadian government's invitation to attend the Jubilee Celebration in July. The Prince is expected to visit New York and the Middle West.

"Voice of America" Is Heard Plainly Across Seas

London, Jan. 7 (I.N.S.).—The voice of America over the trans-Atlantic radio-telephone was no weak voice.

The Universal Service established a connection with the New York American today and the conversation from America could be heard distinctly in London, twenty feet away from the telephone.

H. H. Stansbury of Universal Service read a message from the Lord Mayor of London to the New York American.

FUNERALS OF CARBARN TRIO TO TAKE PLACE TOMORROW

York relatives, according to his father.

Delay in the arrival of Heinlein's brother from Florida caused a change in plans of the Heinlein family which postponed the funeral from today until tomorrow.

Devereaux' father disclosed that each of the six members of the family—mother, father, three sisters and brother—received personal farewell letters from the youth.

As last arrangements were being made for the funerals under the direction of Leo Birmingham, Brighton undertaker, the mothers of the executed men were bearing up well, although exhausted.

Mrs. Heinlein, during the wake at the Heinlein house through the night, was induced to go to bed by relatives, but after attempting to sleep for an hour she got up again and rejoined the others. This morning she finally was able to sleep and two former schoolmates of the executed youth kept a solitary vigil near the casket.

Friends passed in and out of each house throughout the day and the concern of most of the visitors seemed to be for the mothers. Each family desired quiet and seclusion, but it was not to be, and tomorrow at the funeral crowds are expected to throng about the Brighton church.

Because the three men all lived in Brighton and, in fact, spent most of their lives there, there may be friends of boyhood and youth to pay visits to the three houses of sorrow.

In spite of reports of military funerals, it was learned that none of the families had asked that such arrangements be made and none expected to do so, thus avoiding any discussion among veterans as to the propriety of military honors.

Mrs. McLaughlin Proud That Flag Drapes Son's Casket

A star-spangled flag, covering the casket in which lies the body of the executed Brighton youth, John J. McLaughlin, is one of the greatest consolations of McLaughlin's mother.

"John was a corporal in the Indantry at Camp Upton and had an honorable discharge," she said today. "I am very proud that a flag decorates his casket.

"One of the last wishes that my son expressed to me was that any floral tributes sent to the house be given to the sick in the hospitals and I promised him I would see that this was done.

"Thus even in death his hand is extended to cheer up others. It was the same way in prison. During the long, trying days at East Cambridge jail his thought was for others and he had us bring many delicacies which we later found he was sharing most generously among his fellow-prisoners.

"John read many good books in prison.

"In the 'Ascent of Calvary,' three quotations impressed him. One was, 'Now there is no hope of salvation save to those found in the embrace of Christ and Christ, crucified.'

"That is what John meant by emphasizing those words just before he died. They were in Father Murphy's prayer and in John's mind by constant reading of this book which I shall always treasure.

"Another passage he liked was, 'And when He bends over our deathbed, His head heavy with the crown of thorns and on his lips those glorious words, Father forgive them —' John read these words to me when I sat with him often in the prison.

"The third passage he liked was, 'My Lord and Master, from this moment I accept willingly from Thy hands whatever death it may please Thee to inflict, with all its anguish, pain and suffering.'

"Johnny told me of the forgiveness of the Magdalene and the thieves on the cross, and the passion undergone by Christ; all gave him inspiration and comfort.

"He looks older in the casket there, but better than I thought he would. While I am glad he is with me again, I kind of wish I could always remember him by his big blue smiling eyes, instead of the eyes closed in death."

LITCHARD GETS 5-DAY WAIVER AND LICENSE

And so they will be married tomorrow—one of those quiet, home weddings.

Donald B. Litchard of No. 48 Beacon street, who wot away from her books and her degree at Smith College Lucy Woods Briggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Loring Briggs, of Brookline, obtained a five-day waiver today.

Armed with the waiver from Judge Michael J. Murray of Municipal Court, Litchard appeared at City Hall today, got his wedding license and said that the marriage would take place tomorrow in Miss Briggs' home, where she will be given away by her father, head of the Boston Floating Hospital.

Mr. Litchard is a member of the banking firm of M. J. Baker & Co. at No. 399 Washington street. He came from Springfield several years ago and since has made his home here. He is a Dartmouth College graduate, class of '17, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin K. Litchard of Beacon street.

According to members of the family Miss Briggs first met the banker at an informal affair in Newton seven months ago. During the Summer months the pair saw each other from time to time.

Last September Miss Briggs, one of Smith's popular students, returned to college, and judging by her latest marks was working earnestly to win the degree she set her heart upon four years ago.

JONES RESIGNS AS GOV. WINANT ASKS REMOVAL

Concord, N. H., Jan. 7.—Nearly a year after the accident in which a woman, his companion, was killed and for whose death he was tried on a manslaughter charge, Judge Fred A. Jones of Lebanon resigned his post today.

The resignation followed on the heels of Governor John G. Winant's requesting the Legislature to remove Judge Jones.

This request was contained in the Governor's farewell message and was the culmination of an effort that the Governor had been making since last February to oust the judge.

It was on last January 29 that Judge Jones' car went over an embankment at Hanover. A passenger, Mrs. Mildred Presley of Lebanon, was pinned under the car in such a manner that she was suffocated.

Judge Jones was tried for manslaughter, but the jury disagreed.

SAYS MELLON INFLUENCED APPOINTMENT OF WOODS

Washington, Jan. 7 (I.N.S.).—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was named today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee as the "power behind" the appointment of Cyrus E. Woods of Pennsylvania, to the Interstate Commerce Committee.

Voicing strong opposition to Woods' appointment, on the grounds that he had been associated with Pennsylvania coal interests, Senator Goff (R) of West Virginia declared that Mellon, who has an interest in the Pittsburgh Coal Company, was "more responsible than any one else" for the appointment.

HEINLEIN GAVE LOVE LETTERS TO MOTHER

Love letters written to Edward J. Heinlein, awaiting execution in State prison, by Rose Conlon, were returned by Heinlein to his mother on the last visit she paid to him in the death-house.

"Now that Rose's name has already been published, I can tell of this," said Mrs. Heinlein today. "Eddie gave me a cardboard box that last day and we found it contained these letters and others that he had treasured.

"He chose his own pallbearers that last day, too, writing the names on a slip of paper that he gave his father. He also told me what suit he wanted to be buried in, the new blue, double-breasted suit which he bought just two days before he was arrested.

"I have kept it pressed and brushed for him. At first I thought I was keeping it for him to wear again, in life, some day. But now it is for him to wear only in death and how it breaks my heart to see it on him there in the casket.

"Doesn't he look handsome, though? See, they didn't shave his head on top and his black hair is just as it always was. That was kind of Warden Hendry for it would have been an ugly thing to look at. Because it was not done, he looks as he always did in sleep.

"When I showed him the telegram from his brother, Harry, he was sorry that Harry would not arrive in time. And then he said that Harry's place was at home with me and he told me to impress that on his brother after he was gone."

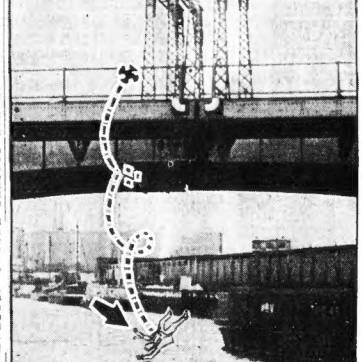
LOOPS THE LOOP IN ICY TRIAL FOR DEATH



FINDS WATER TOO COLD FOR SUICIDE

Diagram shows how Thomas Dwyer of Charlestown took the "double dip" in what police allege was a suicide plunge off Chelsea bridge today. When he hit the icy water he called for aid and was fished out, wet, cold, but very much alive.

WOMAN ENTERS ALIENATION AND DIVORCE SUITS

Mrs. Thomas G. Washburn of No. 134 Medfield street, Back Bay, who has now a divorce suit entered charging cruel and abusive treatment, will file a suit for $200,000 against Mrs. Josephine L. Pope of No. 4 Ayr road, Brighton, charging that Mrs. Pope alienated the affections of Washburn.

Mrs. Pope's property has already been attached as a preliminary to the suit, Attorney Thomas D. Lavelle is counsel for Mrs. Washburn in the divorce suit, while Herbert Avery is her attorney in the alienation suit.

Mrs. Pope admitted that a writ had been served but declined to comment upon the pending action because she said she was unacquainted with the charges preferred against her "Until I know what it is all about, I shall decline to make any statement," Mrs. Pope said.

"I haven't the slightest idea what she will do nor do I know on what grounds she intends to base her suit. I knew nothing about the charge of alienation of affections until you spoke to me about it."

Mrs. Washburn is confined to her bed at her home and was unable to see reporters last night when they called at her home.

Inquiries at an address on Ayr road, where Mr. Washburn is said to have an apartment, brought forth replies that he was not at home.

Mrs. Pope was granted a divorce from Richard Pope of Boston, by Judge Thayer in the Norfolk Superior Court on April 28, 1920, on grounds of cruelty.

Mrs. Pope was divorced in the same court on April 17, 1913, from Conrad E. Richardson of Brookline whom she also charged with cruel and abusive treatment.

VICTIM OF IRON BAR MURDERER

Mrs. Catherine Galloway, wealthy Brooklyn widow, who was beaten to death with an iron bar by her son-in-law, Harold Franklin Webster, in Hempstead, L. I. She refused to lend him money.

WOUNDED GIRL 18TH VICTIM OF 'STABBER'

Bridgeport, Jan. 7 (A.P.)—While police were trying to connect Joseph H. Lefever, fifty-five, a mechanic, with the "phantom stabber" who in two years had attacked seventeen women, mostly under twenty years of age, another victim was added to the list.

After posting a letter Miss Charlotte Mosseau, eighteen, was seized about the neck by a man she had noticed hanging about her home when she left it ten minutes before. She received three wounds on the face. She fainted, but later described her assailant as of medium build, wearing a brown overcoat and a light cap.

Police say the scratches might have been inflicted by the man's hand when he attempted to embrace the girl.

The last appearance of the "stabber" was two months ago, when he wounded Miss Camella Chararalla, 18, as she was leaving a church. Before stabbing her he blessed himself and after the deed escaped.

Three girls in one night were his victims on August 13, and previously his activities had been intermittent over a long period.

Lefever was arrested two days ago when he struck Miss Katherine L. Fitzpatrick, school principal, in the back with his fist after muttering about "women blocking sidewalks."

He said he had been drinking and remembered nothing of the attack. He is free under bond of $150.

"Guilty" A Suspect By Jean McDonough

Copyright, 1926, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.

IT WAS AFTER FATHER'S FUNERAL that Charles called to see me again. It was comforting to know that someone cared for you and would help you at a time like this. Charles said that he was ready to put aside his professional duties for a few weeks so that he could make every effort to bring the criminal to justice. "Doris," he asked, "is there something you know about your father's affairs that you have withheld from the police? Was there anyone who had threatened his life?"

"YES, CHARLES, THERE IS SOMETHING I haven't told the police. I know of one man who had many times threatened and annoyed my father—in fact, I feel certain that he must be the man who is responsible for my father's death. He is an inventor, who spends most of the time in his laboratory. He seems to me to be a man who might do anything. His name is Davis, Thomas Davis." Charles stopped me short and looked at me in surprise.

THE NAME DAVIS SEEMED TO trouble him. "Thomas Davis, did you say. Do you really think that it was Tom Davis who killed your father? Doris, it couldn't have been. Why, he's a client and a friend of mine. I've done some patent work for him and I've always known him to be a quiet, harmless chap—a fairly clever fellow. Tom may be eccentric, I'll grant that, but I'm sure he'd never commit murder. Surely you're mistaken, Doris." Charles seemed almost angry as he said this.

(Copyright, 1927, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

"I'M NOT MISTAKEN, CHARLES," I insisted. "This man whom you think quite harmless has been molesting my father for some time. I remember one time last month father told me that Davis had come to his office and made some absurd demand, and when he refused to grant it Davis attempted to assault him. Father told me that time that he had to have him thrown out of the office. He is not the harmless person you think he is, Charles."

WANT TO KNOW WHY PHONE MEN WERE FIRED

The committee on unemployment of the City Council met this afternoon at City Hall to investigate conditions relative to the discharge of several hundred employes of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company.

The officials who were invited to attend the hearing were Matt B. Jones, president; Charles S. Pierce, vice-president and legal counsel; Philip Hogan, division superintendent of plant; Herman A. Kiedaisch, general superintendent of central office and equipment installations; Joseph Marr, traffic manager, and Charles Blanchard, attache of the vice-president's office.

Invitations were also sent to F. Mark Sullivan, special corporation counsel, and Samuel Silverman, assistant corporation counsel, who have conducted for the city the rate increase protest lodged before the Public Utilities Commission, during former Mayor Curley's administration.

This case is now pending before the United States Commerce Commission on an appeal from the decision of the Public Utilities Commission.

The special committee of the Council's investigating committee investigating unemployment conditions in Boston are Councillors Thomas H. Green, chairman; Michael J. Ward, John A. Heffernan and Joseph McGrath.

SPOTTERS PUT UNDER FIRE IN RUM CASE

"We don't like spotters or the evidence obtained by spotters, but we must not allow our natural dislike of such things to warp our judgment," admonished Judge Lowell in Federal District Court today in his charge to a jury trying the alleged Wilmington rum conspiracy case.

Shortly before noon the jury retired to determine the guilt or innocence of Chief of Police Walter A. Hill of Wilmington and eight other defendants, indicted by a Federal Grand Jury following a raid on the Stevens Farm, North Wilmington in March of last year.

At the outset of his charge the Judge referred to the activities in the case of Asst. Prohibition Administrator Philip Hamlin and Agent Walter H. Sullivan of Lowell.

"If they were grafters," said Judge Lowell, "they were bunglers.

"Do you think men of their experience would sell themselves for $5400? Mr. Lewis, defense counsel, artfully suggests this, but does not believe it himself.

"Entrapment does not properly describe this defense.

"The word gives the idea that if the defendants were trapped in the commission of a crime which they have helped to commit, they are not criminally liable.

"That is not the law. The government agents to be guilty of conspiracy must instigate the crime—must start it. It is not enough that they lure the defendants on to its commission."

The defendants on trial with Chief Hill are Joseph B. Brennan, Massachusetts avenue oil-burner dealer; Giuseppi and Salvatore Lenava; Sam Londo, (Jack) Alexander J. Stanley, Joe Cuccio, Frank and Joseph Mayo.

EIGHTEEN CARAT DUCKS PUT GOOSE TO SHAME

Corning, N. Y., Jan. 7 (A.P.)—The fabulous goose that laid the golden egg has been matched by two ducks raised on the poultry farm of Joseph Nicholas at Mansfield, Pa.

While dressing the ducks, Nicholas found eight pieces of gold in the gizzards. An assay proved the metal to be of eighteen karat quality.

FRANK L. STANTON, "POET LAUREATE," DEAD AT 70

Atlanta Ga., Jan. 7 (A.P.)—Frank L. Stanton, 70, poet laureate of Georgia, and a member of the staff of the Atlanta Constitution for 40 years, died at his home here today. Among Mr. Stanton's best known poems are "Mighty Lak's Rose," "I'll Feller," and "Just a Wearyin' for you."

BRIDE VANISHES IN MALDEN MYSTERY

g old make up the wardrobe of a bride.

So far, the case is still a family affair with the broken hearted Gibbs ransacking Ferry street and possible places where the girl may be staying. He has also sent the telegraph wires humming between Chicago and Malden in the hope that her father, Olaf F. Gabrielson, an I a sister in the former city may be able to shed some light on the mystery. So far the only consolation has come from the brother, Raphael, who, according to the mother, claims that she is all right and is with friends.

Millicent Gabrielson, noted all over Malden for her beauty and her ability as a musician, disappeared as completely as though the pavement had opened and swallowed her.

SEEN WITH BROTHER.

It was Mrs. Gabrielson who really gave the first clue to her mysterious disappearance. "My son Raphael telephoned us he and his wife might be over New Year's Eve," Mrs. Gabrielson said. "Millicent was with me at the time. A few minutes later we received another message stating that Raphael was not coming.

Millicent said: 'Well, Mother, you can make some doughnuts, then. I did and Millicent helped me to wash the dishes. That was 10 o'clock. Millicent then went to the front of the house. When she came back she was putting on her coat and hat. She said she was going to Judson square, a block away, to telephone to Mr. Gibbs.

"I happened to look out of the front window and saw her talking to her brother, who had his automobile in front of the house.

"Millicent returned a short time and said she had talked with Raphael and he had a message from my daughter, Madeline, in Chicago, and that she was going to meet him again in Judson square. She went out and that is the last I have seen of her."

QUESTIONS BROTHER.

"When Millicent failed to return I did not worry as I thought perhaps she had gone to a church watch night meeting. When I did become alarmed I phoned Mr. Gibbs. He came from Cliftondale. We both went to Raphael's home. That was at 1 a. m. New Year's morning. No one was at home.

"A half-hour later, Mr. Gibbs went there and saw Raphael and asked him where Millicent was. Mr. Gibbs said Ray informed him she was with friends.

HELD A CAPTIVE?

"I feel that Ray is trying to keep his sister away from in the belief she should marry a younger man," Millicent's 66-year-old fiance said.

"I love her, though, and I know she loves me. I believe she is held against her will."

"So do I," said Mrs. Gabrielson. "When I told Ray that Millicent had gone to meet him, he said: 'She's with friends.'"

"Ray also volounteered the information Millicent was going to Chicago. Monday I called up Ray's wife and she said Millicent had gone to Chicago. Ray bought her ticket, the wife said.

HOOT MON! JOCK CANNA' GET KICK OUT O' THIS!

Attleboro, Jan. 7 (A.P.)—The privilege of changing his socks was denied some unnamed Scot by the Attleboro Postoffice today. Clerks found in the incoming mail a parcel that rattled. Investigation yielded a pint of real Scotch tucked in a pair of woolen socks sent from Scotland.

PUT ON YOUR TROUSERS, GIRLS; BE IN STYLE

New York, Jan. 7 (I.N.S.)—Trousers for women engaged in outdoor sports probably will become general in 1927, according to a forecast by Baron De Meyer, noted international fashion authority, in a cabled dispatch from St. Moritz, Switzerland, to Harper's Bazar today.

Fashion leaders at the celebrated Swiss resort have definitely adopted trousers as a part of skiing and skating costumes. The Baron's dispatch adds:

"Norwegian trousers or breeches are a part of every woman's outfit at St. Moritz this Winter, the prejudice against such masculine attire having completely disappeared.

"Trousers are now considered as suitable for the old-fashioned mother as for the sophisticated modern daughter.

"The smartest women at St. Moritz wear dark suits, trousers and short coats. No top coats are worn. Beneath the short coats sweaters are worn. On fine days heavy silk scarfs or men's neckties are worn in racing stripes or club colors."

General Wood Coming Home

Manila, Jan. 7 (A.P.)—Governor General Wood said today he hopes to visit the United States for a short time this year on a leave of absence. He was unable to state the date of his departure.

SAYS ADOLPH MENJOU GETS $130,000 A YEAR

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Adolph Menjou, screen actor, according to court testimony, gets $130 000 a year.

This appeared in a suit brought against Menjou for $2,500 by John McKeon who said he was hired by Menjou at $10,000 a year as manager, got Menjou a better contract so that the actor now makes $130,000 a year and then was given only $7,500.

240 OYSTERS OR 100 EGGS ONE FAIR MEAL FOR JOHN!

New Orleans, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—John Samuel Francis Dalton, gastronomist, has advanced his claims to the eating championship of the world. The record, made some time ago by Dalton in a contest with witnesses said: Twelve dozen and eight oysters, three cups of coffee, one and a half quarts of wine, a box of crakers and two slices of jelly cake.

In a letter to the New Orleans State, Dalton claims that a light workout for him would be one bottle of tobasco sauce, fifty hard boiled eggs and a dozen oysters, the last six with sugar. He would chase the meal with another bottle of tobasco sauce.

CHILDREN OF MINISTERS STRIKE BACK

Chicago, Jan. 7.—This knocking of ministers' sons and deacons' daughters as general all-round flip-rearers is all wrong, it came out today when Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of the Methodist Episcopal Church brought "Who's Who in America" to the defense of the maligned sons and daughters.

In "Who's Who," the former Boston bishop pointed out, 1,200 of the total 12,000 names are those of ministers' sons and daughters. If you want that figured for you—it's exactly 10 per cent. of those outstanding in the country as having made good.

Emphasis in a preachers' home is not placed upon commercial success, the bishop said, but he cited these sons of ministers as successful in the market place:

Edward H. Harriman.
Levi P. Morton.
Cecil Rhodes.
Andrew Carnegie.
John F. Andrus.
William C. Brown.
John D. Archbold.
Henry M. Flagler.

Three of the six largest State universities, three of the six best known women's colleges and two largest Presbyterian colleges and two greatest Baptist colleges are headed by preachers' children, he declared.

Bishop Hughes was addressing the Society of Ministers' Sons and Daughters in its campaign for the erection of a memorial national tubercular hospital as a unit of the National Tuberculosis Sanitorium at Colorado Springs, Colo.

In newspaper and magazine work, contemporary journalism, he listed:

Melville E. Stone.
Don Carlos Seitz.
A. P. Terhune.
Bradford Merrill.
Chester S. Lord.
The Patterson Brothers.

SAFE WITH $500, TAKEN IN WORCESTER, FOUND EMPTY

Worcester, Jan. 7.—The 300-pound safe carried away by yeggs from the Burncoat drug store on Christmas Eve was found today by boys coasting in a field adjoining the Shrewsbury rifle ranges.

Boston cracksmen are believed to have carried the safe in an automobile from Worcester. It contained $500 in cash and stamps when stolen, but was cracked and empty when found, half-covered by snow and ice. Because morphine and cocaine were also stolen, the yeggs are believed to be drug addicts.

Water Was Too Cold to Drown; Changes Mind in Hurry

Thomas Dwyer of Charlestown, despondent, leaped into the Mystic River from the South draw of the Chelsea bridge early today in what police charge was a suicide attempt.

Once in the icy water, Dwyer changed his mind and shouted for help.

John A. Grimes, customs officer; Bridgetender Dennis Mahoney, Timothy Shea and Alexander Sutton lowered a ladder and fished Dwyer out. He is in Haymarket Relief Hospital.

SHIP CALLS AID BY LIGHT RAYS

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.)—The flash of light signals early today brought aid to the little freight steamer New York, which, with her propeller disabled, was drifting helplessly five miles east of Execution Rock in lower Long Island Sound.

Having no wireless aboard, the crew was unable to send out an S. O. S., and resorted to visual signals. These blinking signals of distress were caught by the passenger steamer New Hampshire, which wirelessed the New York's plight.

DISABLED SHIP REPORTS O. K.

Drifting helplessly in mid-ocean with a broken rudder, the Italian freight liner Numidia sent an S.O.S. call for aid early today but, four hours later, cancelled the call, after the crew effected temporary repairs. The ship was bound from Baltimore to its home port, Trieste, Italy.

The distress signal was picked up by the Japanese steamer Taibu Maru and relayed to the Boston Navy Yard. The Japanese ship, en route from Italy to Baltimore, put about and headed for the stricken liner, but stopped when the latter ship reported "all O. K."

The Numidia's position at the time of the accident was given as longitude 53.32 West and latitude 39.33 North, this placing the vessel about 1,500 miles east of New York.

ORPHAN SOUGHT FOR ADOPTION

Mrs. Hugh O'Neill of Boston, daughter of the late Dr. Benjamin Franklin Hatch of Boston University, and wife of the owner and director of a Boston art school, is seeking a girl to adopt.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill are childless, and are in a position to offer a child practically everything in the way of worldly goods, together with the love that real parents would give.

It is desired that the girl be between the age of five and seven years and of American parentage. An orphan would be preferable as the couple want to make a complete adoption. They offer a child adopted under such conditions an education in art and music.

Mrs. O'Neill may be communicated with at her address, No. 52 Westland avenue, Boston, or through the medium of Boston Evening American.

HUNT FOR MISSING EAST BOSTON GIRL

A general alarm was broadcast to all police stations in Boston early today as a result of the mysterious disappearance of Mary Fitzgerald, nine years old, of No. 206 Havre street, East Boston.

The little girl failed to return from school and after searching in vain for her for several hours, relatives appealed to the police for aid.

Mary was described as a pretty child, with light, blonde bobbed hair and when she disappeared she wore a red hat, brown overcoat with a velvet collar, tan shoes and stockings.

To Adopt Girl

PREFERS ORPHAN

Mrs. Hugh O'Neill, of No. 52 Westland avenue, promises the girl she will adopt an education in art and music and all the love that real parents would give.

TORTURED FOR JEWEL SECRET

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.)—Bound and tortured for three hours while her husband was held prisoner in an adjoining room of their suburban home last night, Mrs. Henry Everett finally collapsed and told three bandits where to find jewels and securities valued at $10,000

"I'll die first, she screamed when they attempted to frighten her into giving the information, while Everett strained at his wire bands, but after three hours she yielded to the pain of burns inflicted with lighted cigar ends and revealed the location of a wall safe.

Everett, who managed to release himself a half-hour later, found his wife seared about the shoulders and her bared arms and even about her face with burns which physicians feared might leave her permanently disfigured.

MANY DROWN AS STORM SINKS BLACK SEA SHIPS

Sebastopol, Crimea, Jan. 7 (A.P.)—Wireless dispatches report that 25 persons were drowned when an unnamed Turkish steamer sank in the Black Sea near Cape Tuzla, Rumania.

Further south a second Turkish vessel foundered, with unknown loss of life. A violent storm is lashing the whole Crimean coast.

Moscow, Jan. 7 (I.N.S.)—The death list caused by the hurricane that swept the Caucasus Wednesday today was estimated to be 200. The ports of the Black Sea today were full of crippled ships.

HYDE PARK WILL NOT HAVE 7:14 A. M. TRAIN

The 7:14 a. m. train formerly operated from Hyde Park to Boston will not be ordered eliminated, the Public Utilities Commission decided.

In the expectation "that the railroad will so improve the operation of the 7:23 a. m. train as to leave no cause for just complaint," the commission without prejudice dismissed the petition of New York, New Haven & Hartford patrons asking for reinstatement.

1 Dead, 22 Hurt in Wreck

Missoula, Mont., Jan. 7 (A.P.)—One woman is dead, twelve are in hospital and ten more were slightly injured when seven coaches of the fast eat bound Olympian passenger train of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad were derailed west of Missoula.

MAN KILLED BY MONOXIDE GAS

Angelo Cortello, 30, was found dead today, a victim of carbon monoxide gas, in a garage at the rear of No. 54 Eastern avenue, Malden, where he lived with his employer, Vito Volpe.

Volpe and Stephen Grant of Upham street, Malden, found the body when they went to the garage to get Volpe's truck.

The last seen of Cortello was last night when he went to the garage to draw the water from the truck's radiator. He has a wife and two children in Italy.

WARM WAVE ON WAY TO HUB

A spell of warmth on the way from the Eastern slope of the Rockies is due to arrive here tomorrow according to the prediction of the weather man.

Temperatures in New England last night slumped considerably, the lowest recorded being 4 above at Greenville, Me.

In Boston the minimum for the night was 19 above, six degrees lower than that of the previous night.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair and continued cold tonight; Saturday fair with rising temperature; diminishing northwest winds becoming southerly Saturday.

HONOR PAID CAPT. TRENCH AT WORCESTER FUNERAL

Worcester, Jan. 7 (A.P.)—Naval, military and municipal honors were paid this forenoon at the funeral service in the Church of the Immaculate Conception for Captain Martin F. French, U. S. N., Governor of the Virgin Islands, who died suddenly here yesterday in the home of Captain Ralph Earle, president of Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

The body will leave Worcester tonight for Washington, accompanied by Mrs. French, Martin F. French, Jr., Captain Earle and Mrs. Earle, who is a sister of Mrs. French. The burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

BULLETS FAIL TO STOP YEGGS CARRYING OFF SAFE

Police bullets failed to stop two men from carrying off a small safe from a Glister store in the Overbrook section of East Natick today. Patrolman Timmins of Wellesley, who covers the section in an automobile, saw the yeggs carry out the safe and place it in their machine. Drawing his revolver he ordered them to stop. Instead the pair dumped the safe into the machine and drove off as the officer opened fire. Timmins gave chase, but lost the yeggs' machine at Newton Upper Falls. The safe contained a few hundred dollars.

Sitting Out Dances in Ireland "Immoral," Petting Feared

Naas, County Kildare, Ireland, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Sitting out dances has been forbidden by the District Council, which considers the practice as synonymous with petting. The ruling is part of County Kildare's campaign to eradicate immorality.

Hereafter applicants for the use of the Town Hall as a ballroom must promise to cut out sitting out dances. Wall flowers, however, may sit alone.

AUTO MEN RUSH TO GOODWIN'S SUPPORT

Governor Fuller's recommendation that the division of highways be abolished as a separate unit in the department of public works, incidental to the reduction of four associate commissioners to two, will be vigorously fought at the legislative hearings by the Motor Vehicle Conference of Massachusetts.

If the proposed reorganization is favored by the General Court, it is felt that the position of Registrar Frank A. Goodwin may be endangered.

In commenting on the position of the Motor Vehicle Conference today Russell Harmon of Worcester, chairman, also secretary of the Hardcroft Automobile Club, declared that the division is highly important, handling more than $13,000,000 in fees and fines last year.

In fact, the conference is prepared to file a counter proposal that the division be made a separate department.

British Press Views on Hearst Peace Plan to Prevent Wars

By H. H. STANSBURY
Universal Service Correspondent

London, Jan. 7.—The proposal of William Randolph Hearst that a union of English-speaking peoples be formed "to prevent war has caused world-wide comment.

Every London newspaper is carrying editorials discussing the idea, and cabinet ministers and other statesmen are expressing their opinions. Leading journals of virtually every capital in Europe also discussed editorially Mr. Hearst's proposals.

The Manchester Guardian, leading liberal organ in Europe, which prints the Hearst letter textually, comments:

"There are broadly two ways of securing peace. You can build up an all-embracing Union of States like the league of nations which will cover the whole world, but whose authority and unity may be weakened by immense divergences of culture, language, tradition and economic interests which seperate them.

SOLID GUARANTEE OF PEACE

"Or you can build up a far more solid guarantee of peace between nations like those which constitute self-governing portions of the British Empire, which are racially and culturally akin, but whose authority may be opposed by equally powerful groups outside, and even may be regarded by them as a menace.

"The ideal is, of course, to combine both methods, but to insure that regional agreements are subordinate, or at least are not in conflict with the principles of the whole League of Nations.

"It is in the light of these considerations that one is compelled to consider the remarkable statement which has been published by Mr. W. R. Hearst in the large number of American newspapers which he controls.

NEEDS MILITARY BACKING.

"The statement declares that the time is ripe to 'advocate the co-operation of English speaking peoples of the world to maintain peace,' that there should be a 'permanent co operative pact' whose aim would be to 'prevent parties to the agreement making war on themselves and to protect any one and all parties to the agreement from warlike aggression by others.

"There should be an armament agreement for all military, naval and air forces sufficient, but no more than sufficient, to make the compact effective.

"These suggestions are all the more remarkable because of the anti-British record of the Hearst Press. If they reflected no more than a journalistic leap, the direction of the leap would still be instructive.

"Twisting the lion's tail is, evidently, not quite the game it was. To most Englishmen, as doubtless to most Americans, the idea of war between ourselves and the United States is unthinkable.

OUR AMITY WITH CANADA.

"An unstrategic frontier, three thousand miles in length, between Canada and the United States, is entirely unprotected from attack—that is sufficient proof that war between the British and American peoples is as remote in their ideas as it is to those of the peoples of Surrey and Middlesex.

"That kind of guarantee of peace needs no buttress, and probably is better without written undertakings or formal agreement.

"The Hearst proposal goes further in suggesting what is, in effect, a defensive alliance. Since Mr. Hearst definitely repudiates the suggestion of 'entangling alliance,' he must be supposed to mean that each country would be free to determine for itself whether any other party to the agreement had been the victim of aggression.

"It would be possible, therefore, for this country to enter into such an understanding without committing any breach of its obligations to the League of Nations, whose verdict on the question of whether any aggression had in fact taken place, it would continue, of course, to regard as binding.

NO BLOCK BY LEAGUE.

"As to the proposed agreement on armaments, the League hasn't yet evolved any scheme of general reduction, and its chance of evolving one would probably not be diminished by any agreement previously arrived at between this country and the United States.

"Mr. Hearst appears to be thinking much in the terms of the instruments of war. He may know, and we may know, that the purpose of such a combination would be purely pacific, but its very power would be apt to excite jealousies and suspicions, already latent, of the Anglo-Saxon domination in world affairs.

"The reality of close understanding between the various English-speaking races is more important than the forms, and less liable to be misunderstood. And the reality would express itself in ways which would not only disarm criticism, but would give far more effective guarantee of peace than any documentary undertaking.

FIRST TEST IN CHINA.

"War isn't the outcome of sudden mania, but of baffled diplomacy. Close and continued diplomatic understanding between the United States and the British Empire would diminish the likelihood of war far more effectively than would any ostentatious defensive agreement. A defense agreement would come into operation perhaps once in a hundred years, perhaps never.

"The occasion for close diplomatic collaboration occurs today and for all time. China offers a first class opportunity at the present moment. The United States are understood to agree with the British policy as laid down in a recent memorandum. Other powers are understood to be reluctant to move.

"The United States and Great Britain, if they choose to act together, might well be able to force a settlement satisfactory to China no less than to themselves, which would greatly accelerate a return to order and stability.

"That is the kind of co-operation which all Englishmen would do their utmost to promote, and in which not even Malevolence could find cause to criticise.

"Anglo-Saxon unity is a noble ideal, but like all ideals, it is expressed better in conduct than in declarations of conduct."

ORDER YANKEES OUT OF CHINESE DANGER ZONE

Hankow, Jan. 7.—Anxiety for the safety of Americans in Hankow arose today when a British steamer was placed opposite the American consulate and Frank P. Lockhart, American consul ordered American women and children to go board and take provisions for three days.

Fifty merican women boarded the ship which will sail for Shanghai.

Lockhart's orders warned women and children unwilling to avail themselves of these facilities that they cannot expect any guarantee of transportation facilities at a later date.

The consul's warning was issued despite the fact that half a dozen U. S. warships are now racing toward Hankow waters. All told 23 U. S. ships have been mobilized in the danger zone to protect American lives and property if the present anti-foreign outbreak on the part of coolies continued.

The situation here today was one of watchful tension.

All the women and children have been evacuated from the British concession and all business has been suspended. A general strike still impends. Chinese troops still guard the British concession.

Charges are made in some quarters that Bolshevik leaders are heading the anti-British demonstrations.

The evacuation of American women and children is taken as evidence that authorities now fear the anti-foreign demonstrations here may spread beyond the limits of the British colony.

GOULD BRIBERY PROBE OPENS WITH A ROW

Washington, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The Senate's investigation of bribery charges against Senator Gould, Republican, Maine, got under way today with a row provoked by the question whether the legal rule of evidence should apply to the inquiry.

The committee finally agreed the rule was not applicable to a Senate committee hearing, but counsel for the Maine Senator voted exceptions.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, author of the investigating resolution, precipitated the discussion when he offered the journal of the New Brunswick, Canada, House of Assembly, containing an opinion of Judge McKeown, who held Senator Gould had participated in a $100,000 bribe of a former Premier of the province.

F. W. Hinckley, clef counsel for Gould, objected on the ground it was not legal evidence, and Senator Shortridge, Republican, California, acting chairman, ruled the objection was well taken as "the rights of men have suffered by Senate committees not adhering to the rules of law on admissability of evidence."

"I don't propose to sit here and have a man's character besmirched by hearsay and scandal," Shortridge added.

"You may quit any time you please," but the technical rules of evidence do not apply to Senate hearings," retorted Walsh.

The committee overruled the chairman and Senator Walsh read the judgment which he said would form the basis of the inquiry

EXIT TUX, HAIL MINSTREL COAT OF JACOB HUE

The great army of manly bosoms, that usually arch and swell in the stiff-shirt department of a full dress suit, deflated in terror today at the news that male formal plumage hereafter will run to pastel hues and Pierrot designs.

Hereafter, in the night, the well-dressed man-about-town and his more domesticated brother who roams with the family party, will be arrayed in the pattern of the petunia rather than in the crow-like garb now employed, but henceforth bequeathed to undertakers and baseball umpires.

Tuxedos will be Hoyle only for sifting ashes and at other informal rites, and the man caught at any function wearing a belt but no suspenders will be put down as a boor, and one who has no remaining spark of shame.

These fictums were born at the 41st annual meeting of the Merchant Tailors' Exchange in the Engineers' Club, both Boston and New York engineers of rightful raiment taking part in the ripping and tearing of present male propensities in garb after-dark.

Victor J. VanNeste, president of the Boston exchange, declared for a symphony in men's trappings.

"Are not men as a class in a more receptive mood toward a change in dress?" he asked the tailors. There being no concerted answer from the au[illegible], he added:

"Already various advances of colorings in fabrics have been made; for instance, blue, purple and even the light blue material such as the French soldiers' dress uniform for full dress suits. I propose a symphony of coloring instead of the monotonous perfect-match trimmings."

It's a lovely idea!

IT'S WORTH $3 A DAY TO SERVE ON "INSANE JURY"

Jersey City, Jan. 7.—It's worth at least three dollars a day to listen to testimony as to whether a woman is insane, in the opinion of a jury. The members insisted on a raise of one dollar, but finally accepted $2, returned a verdict of insanity, but refused to sign vouchers.

NEGRO BISHOPS RESENT WASHINGTON DINNER 'BAN'

Washington, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—On the ground that there was some objection to their sitting at the banquet table, four Negro bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Zion Church absented themselves from the conference here of the national citizens' committee of 1,000 for law enforcement and law observance.

W. T. Gallagher of Washington, chairman of arrangements, said apprehension had been felt over the attitude of the hotel in serving dinner to Negroes. "We did not want to take any chance of trouble," Mr. Gallagher said, "but we did not withdraw the invitations to the bishops."

KELLOGG AND BORAH CLASH ON POLICY

"The only way we can protect American interests in Nicaragua is by stopping the fighting there, and we intend to do it.

"Senator Borah is absolutely wrong in saying we had no right to recognize the present government of Nicaragua."

Borah expressed the opinion that Diaz, recognized by the State Department, is not the constitutional President of the country.

Kellogg declared that Dr. Sacas was out of the country when recognition was extended to Diaz.

U. S. RIGHT FROM START.

"Does anybody think," the Secretary of State continued, "that we could bring him back to Nicaragua and recognize him?"

Secretary Kellogg explained that after the Chamorro revolution, the Nicaraguan Congress elected a man named Urize as President, but this government refused to recognize him on the ground of irregularities in the Congress that accomplished it.

"Then the Nicaraguan Congress reconvened under the constitution and elected Diaz," he continued, "and he was recognized by this government.

"Those are the facts. Anybody who says the present government is not the constitutional government of Nicaragua is wrong."

U. S. S. Galveston Dispatched to Hunt for Gun-Runner

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The U. S. S. Galveston left Corinto hastily at daybreak today for the Gulf of Fonseca, where a gun runner, alleged to be of Mexican registry, was reported making an attempt to land arms for the Liberals near Costiguina.

Marines Find All's Well in Managua

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 7 (I.N.S.).—The American marines, comprising a legation guard, have arrived here to find conditions very quiet.

Their marching through the streets of Managua was no new sight to Nicaraguans, but they appear more welcome on the occasion of their present visit than when last here.

At Last a Real American Policy at Washington

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has determined to maintain a firm American policy in regard to Nicaragua. He is to be congratulated, and the people of the United States are also to be congratulated.

We have been weak and vacillating too long in the foreign policy of our government. We have been following the feeble policies of Wilson rather than the inspiring policies of Cleveland and Roosevelt.

This country desires to maintain peace, but it also desires to maintain the dignity and prestige of the nation and the rights and the interests of its people. It is too big a country to play the bully, but it is also too big to play the coward.

A firm American policy will receive the support of all the virile Americans in the republic, and the spotlight statesmen who raise their voices against it will soon find that they are out of touch with the sentiment and the spirit of the American people.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

$75,000 FOR 1 DYING AFTER ARMS PARLEY

Washington, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—With the declaration that the United States should give full co-operation to moves towards armament limitation, President Coolidge today asked Congress to appropriate $75,000 for expenses of American participation in the forthcoming activities of the preparatory commission for disarmament at Geneva.

HEALTH CHIEF WARNS OF BOGUS SOLICITOR

Health Commissioner Dr. Francis X. Mahoney today issued a warning to business people against a bogus solicitor for advertisements for a book or magazine, the proceeds of which are to be used for a sick or health benefit fund for employes of the Health Department. The health commissioner said the man is not authorized to collect money for any purpose whatsoever on behalf of the Health Department.

$75,000 FOR 1 DYING AFTER GUN BATTLE

tomatic pistols were seized. The police station looked like a small arsenal. Later two more men were rounded up.

Among those taken into custody and detained at the station for questioning was Max Fox, New Bedford merchant, who in 1925 served a three-months' term in the House of Correction and who paid a $500 fine after his capture at the head of a rum-running expedition in South Dartmouth. Fox was also a witness when the Plymouth County Grand Jury investigated a gun fight between liquor runners in Mattapoisett early in that same year.

The triple-headed battle started shortly after the Dartmouth police went to the Burgess farm with Fox after the latter called at the home of a police officer and asked protection from a gang of hijackers whom he suspected of planning a raid on his liquor cache.

For a full half-hour the pistol battle was waged, and finally the hi-jackers fled.

After Burbo had been sent to the hospital, the police scattered in search of the hi-jackers.

In a garage distant less than two miles from the scene of battle they found fifteen men asleep in automobiles. In each car was either a shotgun or a rifle, while there were many revolvers packed in the side-pockets of the automobiles.

The 15 were taken to police headquarters here, and booked as suspicious persons.

If Burbo survives the men will be brought before him at the hospital in the effort to have him identify them.

The men under arrest were held in $10,000 each when arraigned in court on a charge of assault while armed.

QUIZ MELLON ON VET LOANS

Washington, Jan. 7 (I.N.S.).—The Senate moved today to help veterans obtain loans on adjusted service compensation certificates. After adoption of a resolution calling upon Secretary of Treasury Mellon to report what steps the Federal Reserve Board has taken to expedite the loans, Senator Walsh (D.), Massachusetts, introduced a bill which would authorize the Veterans' Bureau to make the loans.

A resolution introduced by Senator Copeland (D.), New York, requesting a report on what the board had done, pursuant to the law, was adopted almost without discussion, marking the first official act of Congress in the matter since it developed several days ago that many banks were refusing to make loans on the certificates.

Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the Republican leader, said the flurry over veterans' loans came about through a misunderstanding on the part of bankers.

School Fire Loss $150,000

Greenwich, Ct., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Loss from fire which destroyed the three-story class room building of the Edgewood School was placed by authorities today at $150,000. A large boarding house for teachers and students nearby was saved.

SEIZE CAPTAIN, CALLED ARMS SMUGGLER

"Spotted" by the Secret Service as an arms and ammunition smuggler into war-torn Nicaragua and into Mexico, Captain Willis Brown came into Boston today, under arrest on his steam trawler Clara Matthieu, towed up from Cuttyhunk by the revenue cutter Acushnet.

The trawler was seized last Tuesday off Cuttyhunk by Federal officials, led by Special Treasury Agent Owen McKenna, who engaged in a brief battle with the captain when he refused to open the hatches.

No arms were found on the boat, but although its manifest called for 3,200 cases of liquor from Halifax to St. Pierre, no liquor was on board either. She carried below decks baled hay, baled leather and oil.

When the Clara Matthieu was towed to Pier 4, New Haven docks, in Northern avenue, Captain Willis was formally placed under arrest again, with his crew, by Deputy Collector Thomas F. Finnegan.

REFUSES TO TALK.

The captain refused to talk then, but it was expected that he would be questioned later in the marshal's office.

The declaration that he had been "spotted" as an arms and ammunition smuggler was made by the Secret Service in a report to Coast Guard officials today.

On arrival in Boston, Captain Willis was charged, in addition to other charges involving navigation laws, with criminally resisting a Federal officer.

LACKS BILL OF HEALTH.

It is expected that he will be questioned as to the absence of a bill of health from the port authorities on the ship's manifest. He will also be questioned as to the presence on board of a crew of sixteen when his sailing papers call for a crew of only fourteen men.

The Clara Matthieu is registered as owned in Nicaragua, but according to Federal officers she is owned by Halifax interests.

WESLEYAN STUDENTS' CHURCH LEAVE CUT

Middletown, Ct., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Undergraduate opposition at Wesleyan University to compulsory attendance at chapel, which recently threatened to break out in a strike against the compulsory feature, had an unexpected repercussion when letters were received from President James L. McConaughy cancelling the privilege which some students have enjoyed of attending Sunday services in downtown churches rather than at the university chapel.

Investigation of the situation by university authorities disclosed that many apparently signed the attendance statements, but did not trouble themselves to go to church as they claimed.

JURY IN DEADLOCK OVER LOEB-LEOPOLD CASE

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 7 (I.N.S.).—Disagreement in the civil action through which Charles Ream, Chicago taxicab driver, hopes to collect $100,000 apiece from Nathan F. Leopold, Jr. and Richard Loeb, for criminal mutilation, threatened today when the jury still argued the case.

The young "thrill slayers," now serving life sentences for the murder of little Bobby Franks, were identified by Ream as his assailants. Leopold and Loeb, denying on the witness stand that they knew anything about the mutilation, stuck to alibi stories.

Ziegfeld Belle

MISS WALLACE

Florenz Ziegfeld, peer of pickers, saw her first as a Boston stenographer and decided she would be more ornamental as one of the "glorified" in "Rio Rita."

Boston feminine loveliness is well represented in "Rio Rita," the Ziegfeld musical comedy operetta now at the Colonial, for amongst the glorified Ziegfeld beauties there is Rosemary Wallace, who after being graduated from high school and working in the advertising department of a Boston newspaper, found her looks useful and became an artists' model, until Mr. Ziegfeld engaged her for "Rio Rita"—her first stage appearance this was in her home city.

Another Boston beauty in the play is Beryl Halley and still another Marion Stramick, winner of beauty prizes at Nantasket Beach and Atlantic City, when Ziegfeld gave her first stage appearance in the last Follies.

Incidentally, J. Harold Murray the featured baritone of "Rio Rita," is a Boston product. He has not been seen here since he sang in "China Rose" at the Hollis Street Theatre some seasons ago.

FLOUR TRAIN IS SPEEDING EAST

The first through trainload of flour for Boston from as far West as the Missouri River since the war was started on its way and coming East on a five-day schedule. The shipment is by the Omaha Flour Mills, Omaha, Neb. It is consigned to the Walter E. Fuller Company in this city.

Loaded in new C. B. & Q. equipment, the flour is moving over the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Wabash, C[illegible]n Pacific and Boston & Maine Railroads. The service will benefit New England flour consumers, as there are about 40 cars in the train, and they will eventually move to 28 different New England cities where Mr. Fuller has sold flour.

W. K. Skillen, assistant general freight agent of the Boston & Maine, arranged with the other roads to use this train watched at every junction to see that the shipment is intact. In addition telegraphic running advices are keeping the consignees informed of the train's daily progress.

The Boston & Maine Railroad is showing by this up-to-date move that it officials are helping to boost New England with its efficient freight service.

JAIL "PILLOW SLIP" BURGLAR

Providence, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Continuing his warning that robberies in Rhode Island must stop, Judge Hahn in Superior Court today sentenced Carlo De Cesare, known to the police as Rhode Island's "pollow slip" burglar, to 20 years in prison. De Cesare, 23 years old, is said by police to have committed more than a score of burglaries.

He told the court he first broke into the home of a former employer who discharged him, and later to secure money and furnishings so that he could marry. Thousands of dollars' worth of clothing, jewelry, silverware and furnishings were recovered by the police in his home and in the home of his fiancee.

MME. SOREL'S NEW PLAY TO BE REPEATED

The demand yesterday when the box office opened at the Boston Opera House for tickets to performances of "Mistresse de Roi" the new play in which Mme Cecile Sorel will appear as Mme. Dubarry, caused the Shubert represen tatives here to announce the continuation of the repertoire as previously advertised and to substitute the "Du Barry play" at all performances next week, excepting Tuesday night and Friday matinee, when the French star will appear in "Camille," the renowned play by Alexander Dumas.

Titania's Palace Show ~ Will Aid Children ~ In Boston Hospitals

SOCIETY LEADERS SPONSOR EXHIBITION
Mrs. H. Parker Whittington (at left) and Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., are co-chairmen for Boston exhibition of Titania's Palace at Paine's. Boston Evening American Staff Photo

MRS. FREDERICK W. BUSK
Another smart young society matron interested in the Palace and its showing for hospital aid.

CREATOR OF PALACE AND NOTABLE ASSOCIATES

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

BOSTON'S QUEEN OF THE Ice, Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard, she of the marvelous spirals and pivots and letter eights, is taking her very brightest skates and her smartest sports costumes up to Claremont soon, to demonstrate the technique of ice skating in its perfection and beauty as only she can do. She and Nathaniel Niles, her accomplished partner in countless Boston appearances, are invited to the New Hampshire town for the three-day ice carnival late in January. Just now they're industriously putting a finishing polish on their steps, by assiduous practice on the shining ice at the Arena.

MRS. BLANCHARD is, of course the star member of the Boston Skating Club, which takes over the Arena for its own uses during Tuesday and Thursday afternoons each week, and this Winter also includes for the first time Wednesday and Friday mornings as the occasions when members may have an hour or so at a favorite sport.

NATURALLY SKATING CLUB members and other smart set Bostonians rejoice at Mrs. Blanchard's fame and skill. Her fame, as everyone knows, is international in scope and her skill has been matched with world-known stars here and abroad. This Winter she hopes to compete in two important contests—one in Toronto, between the United States and Canada for the North American championship, and another in New Haven for the United States championship. Then there are certain plans for Skating Club meets which may materialize later in the season, but these are, at the moment, nebulous.

FOR MRS. SAMUEL WARREN'S luncheon in compliment to Major Sir Nevile Wilkinson and Lady Beatrix Wilkinson, Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., was smartest of the smart in an ensemble of Burgundy red, her same felt hat and her straightline frock of the same warm wine tone. She, with Mrs. H. Parker Whittington and Mrs. Frederick Busk, afterward went over to Paine's to watch the assembling of the marvelous Titania's Palace. Sir Nevile and Lady Beatrix trust this most important task to no hands but their own.

AN ADORABLE FROCK, frenchily delicate and eliciting "Oh's" and Ah's" came fresh from its wrappings to adorn a charming bud, in the person of Miss Elizabeth Hubbard, for the party her aunt, Mrs. T. Jefferson Newbold, gave for her at No. 46 Beacon street. The frock was blue, a frothy overdress of tulle glinting with sequins and rich in bead embroidery, showing through its gossamer weight the sheen of a blue and silver slip. A pert bow at the shoulder trailed long streamers in her locks, and her lowers were butterfly roses. Mrs. Newbold was equally pleasant to look upon, her frock of white done with iridescent sequins and silver beads, a froth of ostrich starting at the shoulder and ending in a chou at the belt, entirely in the mode of the moment.

GOLDEN ROADS

by Winifred Van Duzer
Author of "THE GOOD BAD GIRL"

The Amazing Love Story of a Misunderstood Hub Working Girl

"I haven't touched a drop since that night," said Stanley. "I never will again. . . . Shall we go back, little Gay?"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Gay Moore and her cousin, Christine Noe, who have been raised by Gay's parents, affectionately called Jaimie and Mary, are employed in the State Street house of Johnstone Baird; Christine as telephone operator and Gay as a typist. Christine has determined on a rich marriage and cultivates Roger Pennington. Penny is the chum of Stanley Baird, who is in love with Gay. Gay returns his love and persuades him to go to work. Christine also encourages the attention of Ivor Barclay, a lawyer client of the house. Gay, who knows of the friendship of Johnstone Baird for a woman whom the girls call the "Lilac Lady," fears that Stanley will inherit his father's vices and is doubtful of his love for her. Gay and Christine are invited to a party given by Stacia Marinoff. Stacia works in the same office and has a tawdry apartment in the West End. Gay on being told that Stanley and Penny are to be there, consents to go. Stanley and Penny arrive late, having been detained by a dinner given by Stanley's sister, Peg. Gay seeing that Stanley is intoxicated, slaps his face and runs away from the party, leaving Christine. She goes home alone. Christine stays overnight with Stacia and goes to bed in a much befuddled state.

After the party, Gay avoids Stanley. She also discovers that Christine is caught in her own net and is really in love with Penny. Leaving the office one evening, Gay finds Stanley waiting for her, and in order to avoid seeing him returns to the office. She falls asleep and is awakened by the sound of voices.

CHAPTER 11.

"You feel like that, Gay? You're through for keeps, then? I'll get you a cab. I'd better stay. Barclay's upstairs."

Shame stole upon her like a blight. her eyes drooped. "Ah well, forgive me, Stan. I didn't mean—after all you've done!"

His face was white—there was a look of pain about his lips. She wondered, with a pang, if she ever were to see the old merry smile again.

"Don't, Stan. I can't bear your looking so. So unhappy—"

"Take off your hat, Gay? Sweet! When I was a kid—seven or eight—someone gave me a book with lovely pictures. There was a fairy princess—all moonbeams and mist, she had hair like spars. I was in love with her for years.

"Then I saw her, come to life . . . The quaintness of him—tall boy, with head so low! She wanted to run her fingers through his hair to touch his hand, lying on the table.

Her bitterness melted away; she felt beauty creeping upon her like a tide.

"Don't mind that way, Stan. I'm not remembering anything you'd want to forget. Only how fine you are—how lovable—"

"You mean—Gay, if I could make you believe! I haven't touched a drop since that night. I never will again. Does it sound like big talk? But I'm humble. And sincere. Will you back? Little Gay!"

She shook her head, started to say "There's no going back." But before the words would form he was standing; she saw Christine and Barclay disappearing over the terrace.

It seemed hardly a minute before she was in the roadster with Stan, skimming a country road in the wake of a red light already far

HIT KIDDIE KAR, FOUND GUILTY

A kiddie kar not very high-powered, which had been parked by its tiny owner, brought down today on the head of James J. Travers of Cornell street, Arlington, two sentences totalling three months in the House of Correction and two fines of $100 each.

Travers was found guilty in East Cambridge Court of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and of going away from the scene of an accident without making himself known.

Patrolman Thomas F. Sullivan of Arlington told Judge Stone that Travers crashed into the kiddie kar, but kept on going. Sullivan chased and overtook him and Travers admitted having had two drinks of wine.

In court today Travers declared the drinks were non-intoxicating wine.

He appealed sentences and fines and was held in $500 for higher court.

PUTS CHECK ON HIRED CARS

As a check to the illegal operation of drive-yourself cars, Registrar Frank A. Goodwin today filed through Representative Clarence S. Luitweiler of Newton a bill prohibiting companies letting machines to any person not licensed and who does not present a certificate from the registrar bearing his photograph.

The certificate would also bear the number of the person's license and his description.

Another Goodwin bill filed would permit spending for safety purposes one-half of the amount collected from fines in the preceding year.

GUNMAN SO INDIGNANT HE REPORTS TO POLICE

James Canoni, barber, of Compton street, South End became involved in an argument with Paul Agrilli, also a barber in Agrilli's home in Rose street, South End. Canoni admitted to the police of East Dedham street that he sent two bullets in the other barber's direction because Paul made trouble. But Paul passed the bullets in flight and apparently is still running, for he hasn't been home.

Canoni was so indignant that he went to East Dedham street and complained that Paul was a troublemaker. He was arrested, charged with assault and battery with a loaded revolver, with intent to kill. The revolver was found on him.

Prince 'Nikky' and Ileana Cuff Each Other

Dance Their Way Into Detroit Hearts

SQUABBLE JUST LIKE COMMONS

Sarah Brown, Chicago girl reporter, who served as personal maid to Queen Marie of Rumania during the royal tour of the United States, today tells what her royal mistress really thought of society and relates what went on behind the scenes between Ileana and Nikky.

What the Queen actually thought of America and the Americans; what her moods and whims are. Miss Brown in a series of articles tells Boston Evening American readers. The fifth of the series follows:

By SARAH BROWN

(Copyright, 1927, by the Boston Evening American. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

There have been thousands of questions asked about Her Majesty's two beautiful and attractive children — whether they are Prince and Princess, or whether they are just boy and girl.

As a matter of fact, the second they passed by the curtained doors which marked their own and their mother's carefully guarded apartments, they dropped much of the dignified manner which marked their public demeanor, and (don't tell anybody about this)—Ileana has been known to cuff her brother vigorously upon occasion, while the gentleman in question was not above returning the compliment with more energy than anything else.

INFORMAL FEELINGS

Such tiffs, let it be understood, were never of a vengeful nature—but their two young royal highnesses are as prone to lively outbursts and squirmings as are any other two young humans. Their rigid training has subdued them enough in public—it was only in the privacy of their own intimate circle that they displayed their informal feelings.

When the two youngsters were confronted with one evening's program, they both groaned. Her Majesty was firm at first. They had to go whether they wanted to or not. But finally she relented.

"You children can stay at home if you insist," she sighed. "But I—I have to go everywhere."

Immediately after her departure Ileana, having successfully escaped the entertainment planned, decided she would really like to go to a movie, and did her best to get Nikky to take her. That young man, however, being a trifle sulky over events in general and especially over the fact that he had donned his formal evening clothes before being notified that he could stay at home, refused to be persuaded. The discussion became heated.

ILEANA BEGS

"Please," begged Ileana, and grabbed her brother by the shoulder, trying to haul him along by force.

"I told you I wouldn't go! Go to bed!" retorted Nikky, trying to get away from her.

The scuffle proceeded from the exquisite velvet hung entrance hall to Nikky's bedroom, from which he finally managed to rout his persistent sister, who thereupon became discouraged and retired. Shortly after, he went into his study, and in reading American tales of the wild west before going to bed.

Of course practically everybody in Chicago society was as concerned a dignity would permit in Queen Marie's affairs.

It may interest society to know that she was even more concerned with theirs.

I was "on duty" one morning in the outer hall—it was my job to open doors, take messages or run errands while in that post—when genial Arthur Meekers, the famous Colonel Carroll and several other members of Her Majesty's entourage arrived to escort her out for the day.

Her Majesty was far from being ready, and to all appearances the guard of honor would have to cool its heels and wait for her while she leisurely finished her preparations.

"I will not be hurried," she exclaimed heatedly, when informed that it was time to depart. "I will

WIN LAURELS AT DODGE CONVENTION

Peggy and Kay Corbett of Somerville, who are declared in dispatches to have won the hearts of Detroit by their dancing at the convention of Dodge Brothers automobile dealers.

BOSTON DANCER SCORES HIT

Detroit, Jan. 7—Francesca Braggiotti, Boston society dancer, and Peggy and Kay Corbett, two pretty Somerville girls, hold this city in the palms of their hands today.

More than 5,000 Dodge auto dealers and executives chose the show as the best on the variety bill offered on the last day of Detroit's convention, though the Will Rogers sent the famed Will Rogers representative and the Boston girls offered beautiful Irene Bordoni.

Will Rogers

Even arrayed against acts of such high calibre the Boston girls proved their worth, and were loudly encored in Massey Harris hailed them as the best of the vaudeville program.

In addition, 25 other New England artists were seen in a sketch written and rehearsed in Boston.

The audience was a critical one although in a jubilant mood as a result of the optimistic keynote speech of President E. G. Wilmer in which he announced Dodge Brothers, Inc., will continue in 1927 the four-cylinder car as the backbone of the business, but will enter the high price market in July with a supplementary car of outstanding performance.

HUB STAR ACCLAIMED AT AUTO SHOW

Francesca Braggiotti, Boston society dancer, who scored a distinct triumph at the Dodge Brothers auto dealers' convention at Detroit.

DX Report
By "SARNET"

With a little touch of cold last night, we had a good night for distant. Early in the evening they started coming through and kept fairly strong during most the whole evening. KDKA was very consistent, being as loud as a local most of the time. In the early evening, WJZ was not its former self, but later it was as strong as ever. The full list of stations heard reel well, is KDKA, Pittsburgh; WJAZ, Jersey City; WHAI, Baltimore; WJR, Detroit; WBCA, New York; WJZ WEAF, New York; WMAK, Lockport; WFG, Atlantic City; WENR, Chicago; WGY, Schenectady, and WGBS, New York. While the local stations, WEEI and WBZ, were using full power, we had no difficulty in listening to WMCA between the locals with no interference.

However, last night, on the low wave-lengths, practically every program was ruined by the heterodyning. It will be useless for us to have good nights unless we can be assured of freedom from interference.

RADIO MIXED UP BY PHONE LEAK

Radio fans are stirred today over the medley of converse they received last night when WEEI and WBZ got all mixed up.

For nearly 15 minutes the waves from the two stations met and jangled in a radio medley that was never heard before and no amount of tuning would separate the two.

According to Edison officials at the studio of WEEI the same condition occurred in their receiving set and they immediately got in touch with WEAF in New York, which was sending them the program.

Telephone calls by the dozen from irate listeners came into the studio and to the newspapers, trying to ascertain the cause of the sudden inpouse.

Finally Tanaser C. H. Dickerman of WEEI shut off the medley and announced that the program was slightly confused, and that the trouble would be rectified in a short while.

After investigation it was discovered that the trouble resulted from the land wires carrying the two programs from New York. WBZ was carrying the program over an adjacent wire from WJZ and in some manner a leak sprung through the "toll test" board which was handling the radio business. In this manner the radio audience was listening to a mixed telephone conversation and not to a mixed broadcast.

Twice as many know these facts

THERE are twice as many users of Ray-O-Vac batteries today as there were a year ago!

Why? Because Ray-O-Vac batteries give better reception at less cost!

Ray-O-Vac "B" batteries have from ⅛ to ⅓ as much internal resistance as other "B" power units. They permit amplification without distortion.

The master Ray-O-Vac "B" 3-volt battery with no 1, 2 or 3 volt taps; especially for use on a, c, or battery eliminators

And a new type of construction has increased the staying power—already extraordinary—of these batteries by from 10% to 15%.

Ray-O-Vac batteries are sold by the leading dealers in radio equipment and supplies. If you have any difficulty getting them, write us for the name of a nearby dealer who can supply you.

SPEED, ACCURACY, INTEGRITY — IT HAPPENED

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 19[illegible]

CHICK TO GIVE OUT HIS SIDE

Star Witness Fails to Show and the Hearing Is Postponed; Resumed at 4

Chicago team in 1917 and that almost every member of the White Sox gave $45 to a fund subsequently turned over to the Tigers.

The affidavit was made in the office of the Chicago Tribune, and the charges uphold those made before Commissioner Landis on Wednesday by Swede Risberg. Gandil came here to testify in the resumption of the hearing.

In the affidavit Gandil maintained that he was the one who sent word to the Detroit players that the Sox would reward them for "easing up."

Gandil said the frame-up was made before the first of those four games was played.

"I met Bill James under the grandstand at Comiskey Park before the first game," Gandil's affidavit read. "Bill said to me, 'these are going to be some pretty soft games.'

"And I said, 'Well, Bill, if it goes all right I will see that you are fixed up.'"

After reciting his conversation with James, the Tribune quotes the affidavit as continuing:

"The first intimation that I had that it was generally known among the Chicago players that these games were being thrown was the night after the first ball games in the clubhouse, when Rowland, Schalk, Eddie Collins and Gleason were discussing how easily we had won the game, they mentioned different things that had happened during the day and Eddie Collins made the remark how terrible the games looked."

GANDIL WORRIES.

The affidavit substantiated Swede Risberg's story, except in one particular. Gandil said it was possible that some of the Sox players contributed to the fund thinking it was to be a present for the Detroit pitchers and not the payment of crooked money.

Gandil said he would repeat his story to Commissioner Landis today, provided the questioning is confined to the four games under question. If any attempt is made to bully" him, he said, "I'll pick up my hat and coat and leave.'

"I'm not going to talk just to get even with the fellows who once threw me down," he said. "I'm going to talk because Landis asked me for what I know, and I've decided to tell it.

"I don't want reinstatement, but I want Landis to tell me why, after being acquitted by a jury of charges of wrongdoing in baseball, I can't play in the big leagues."

He spoke of the fact that Risberg was called a liar by some of those he accused.

"Risberg was too easy, Gandil said. "Nobody will call me a liar in my hearing.

"What Swede told is true. He couldn't tell all the story, because he didn't know it. I can tell it, and no man can scare me."

CHARGES ARE DEFINITE.

Whereas Risberg's story was general, Gandil's charges are definite. He names several players and tells the part which he said they played in games in which allegations were proven.

Pertinent paragraphs in his affidavit are:

"I know that the four games September 2 and 3, 1917, were thrown by Detroit to Chicago, and that subsequently a fund of money was raised, to which all save one or two of the White Sox team contributed $45 apiece; and that subsequently the money was delivered by me to Bill James, a pitcher for Detroit.

"At the time the series began Chicago was two and one-half games in the lead, with Boston pressing them. The winning of four games would make Chicago's pennant absolutely most sure; whereas the loss of even half those games would cut the margin of the Sox over Boston to almost nothing.

"Our club left Chicago after those four games. It was upon our return that I first heard mention of what we ought to do for the Detroit players. Someone suggested giving them —the pitchers, I mean—a suit of clothes. I said, 'Let's make it money,' and we finally decided that before the season ended we would give the Detroit pitchers about $200 apiece. That meant that everyone of us would kick in with $45.

"The money was collected September $46.

"I suggested it would be a good time to take the money to the Tigers, who were playing in Philadelphia. Rowland (Clarence Rowland, then manager) said, 'Go ahead and get the money.'

IMPLICATES ROWLAND

Not all the money he collected, Gandil said, was in cash. Some made pledges. "I remember getting promises or cash from Felsch, Williams, Risberg, Liebold, John Collins, Risberg, Eddie Collins, Cicotte, Faber, Jackson, Joe Benz, Eddie Murphy, Reb Russell and a few others whose names I do not remember. I did not get any from Rowland or Kid G'eason."

Describing the handing over of the pool to Bill James, Gandil deposed:

"We (Risberg and Gandil) went to a room in the Aldine Hotel, Philadelphia, where we found Bill James, Deums, Oscar Suaage and Cunningham playing poker. I called James outside and said: 'Bill, here's the money I promised you or words to that effect. About the only thing I remember Bill saying was, 'That's good. Howard's been anxious for his dough.'"

Bill James, the so-called "pay-off man," is another principal whose testimony today was expected to let up another shade that has been drawn around some of the alleged dugout doings of September, 1917. James traveled here from the West Coast to add his chapter to the story.

James, a member of the Tyler fighting staff in 1917 and later a player on the White Sox roster, has been named as the man to whom Gandil handed the $1,100 for distribution to certain members of the Detroit team. In interviews with newspaper men he has given no inkling of the nature of his intended statements to the commissioner.

Remaining over for today's continuation of the public hearing are most of the players and former players who jammed the offices of baseball's overlord Wednesday. Risberg was among those who remained.

"I told Commissioner Landis I would come here and face every man who took part in those games," he said. "Well, I faced them, didn't I? And I'm still here, and will stay here until Landis says my presence is no longer required."

Risberg said he didn't believe he had been treated exactly right at Wednesday's hearing.

CROWD GATHERS TO SEE HEROES AND JUDGE

This throng waited in the cold breezes off the lake in Chicago to see Cobb, Collins, Schalk and the rest of the accused athletes parade into the hearing chamber. They cheered the boys as if it were midsummer. They also had a yell for Judge Landis, who may be seen with his favorite collar button and cane approaching the tribunal.

PLAY STARTS IN $10,000 COAST GOLF TOURNEY

Los Angeles, Jan. 7.—The $10,000 Los Angeles open golf championship, most notable event of the Winter season of sport, gets under way in earnest today at El Caballero, when some 131 golfers will take part in a once-over of a course that has been designated as one of the ten sportiest in these United States.

The golfers are playing, primarily for the championship now held by Andseme 'Arry Cooper, of El Sereno. The pros are interested in the $3,500 top prize.

Today's romp of eighteen holes is really the first half of a second qualifying round, for the scoring today, added to the scoring of Saturday, will determine which collection will be permitted to play a final 36 holes on Sunday.

MAINE, N. Y. U. AND B. U. IN TRIANGULAR RELAY

Orono, Me., Jan. 7 (A.P.)—University of Maine will meet New York and Boston Universities in a triangular relay meet at the Boston A. A. games on February 5. Faculty Manager B. C. Kent announced today. This race will replace the usual dual contest with Tech.

An innovation on the schedule is a dual track and field meet with Bates College on Washington's birthday in the new Maine indoor field.

SEVEN GAMES LISTED FOR MAINE GRID TEAM

Orono, Me. Jan. 7 (A.P.)—Seven games, including three with New England conference teams and three in the state series, appear on the University of Maine football schedule. It follows:

September 24, Fort Williams at Orono; Oct. 1, Rhode Island State at Orono; Oct. 8, Connecticut Aggies at Storrs; Oct. 15, open; Oct. 22, Bates, at Lewiston; Oct 29, Colby at Waterville; Nov 5, Bowdoin at Orono; Nov. 11 or 18, New Hampshire University at Orono.

SOFT FOR GENE, BUT DON'T TRY TO IMITATE

GENE TUNNEY, marine, was getting $30 a month eight years ago. Yesterday he signed a contract that guaranteed him $400,000 cash and a bright possibility of as much more on percentage for engaging in one bout next September. Eight years ago Gene used to box with the other marines for the fun of it. Now he can get a leatherneck's life pay for appearing a couple of minutes on a vaudeville stage.

Gene has climbed the heights as some few heroes do in this age of sport madness. His case exemplifies the reason for crooked fights, sloughed ball games, professional football and countless other evils. The youngster, after reading the copybooks, decides that grabbing quick thousands is a much simpler answer to existence than tucking away hard-earned pennies.

When fame and fortune do not crown the early efforts the kids naturally start feeling around. They knew there's easy money hendy, and they want it. They gamble, frame things, and shoot off on trails that can lead nowhere but to disaster.

One man in several million is good enough to reach the crest without tearing his body and heart apart. The real heroes are the birds who realize that the glittering pinnacle is not for them and plug and fight until they batter through to success.

This process means that a lot of loose parts fall by the road side. And there you have your scandals. This sounds more like a sermon than anything we've written since the school days, but what with the baseball riot raging thoughts of the sort are natural enough.

The young man who gets himself a pay envelope, and sees that it grows fatter year by year, is the individual who rides along to soft old age, which is the goal of most mortals. Ask dad. He knows.

EDDIE DOOLEY SAYS HE HAD MORE FUN LAST FALL THAN HE EVER HAD IN FOOTBALL BEFORE. HE WAS PROBABLY LAUGHING WHEN MISTER FRENCH OF HARVARD RAN AROUND HIM.

Dora Dumb reads about the dashes and thinks it's terrible that high school boys should know such things.

THIS YOUNG MAN HAS TO BE SUCCESSFUL

THERE is something very refreshing in the letter from Alex Gaston sent along by Bob Quinn of the Red Sox. Alex, as you may recall, was a bust at the Fenway last Summer. He didn't hit nor throw as a big league catcher should. Naturally, he was given the air.

Most players when they're canned howl to high heaven. They admit they could have made good if given the chance, and know that they were slaughted out of the league for some sinister purpose or other. Alex isn't one of them.

"Dear Mr. Quinn," he writes. "Notice of my release to St. Paul arrived yesterday. A statement to the effect that I did not receive a fair chance has appeared and I would like to take this opportunity to tell you that no such statement has come from me. I never allibied in my life. I had the worst year of my career and it was my misfortune to hate it when I had every opportunity to show my ability.

"I am sorry that I won't have a chance in 1927, but, as you wrote, such are the fortunes of war with a tail-end ball club. I enjoyed my connections with the Red Sox and you have my sincerest wishes for a successful season."

Alex admits that it was his fault. That's a trait rare in anybody; especially so in a professional athlete. Alex will be successful. He knows his own failings and that's always the start on the way up.

TOD MORGAN AND M'GRAW MEET TONIGHT

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Tod Morgan of Seattle, holder of the junior lightweight title title, returns to Tex Rickard's Madison Square Garden Arena tonight to test his punching powers on a lightweight. His opponent in a feature ten-round match will be Phil McGraw of Detroit.

Morgan's opposition in his own division has dwindled rapidly in the last three months, the coast fighter having defeated Jo Glick, Jimmy Dundee and Carl Duane, all Gotham contenders in succession to Jack.

McGraw, an aggressive, fast hitting lightweight, is hoyed upon as the most dangerous foe Morgan has met here since he mounted the throne, but the crown will not be at stake. He will fight the Detroit boxer at catchweights.

In the semi-final ten round light weight fray, Harry Cook of Buffalo will hook up with Billy White of Jersey City.

CONVICTION OF MYERS WILL NOT AFFECT TAMPA RACES

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The conviction of Harvey Myers, former president of the West Coast Jockey Club, on charges of violating the State gambling law, will not affect a meeting scheduled to open January 15, officials believe.

Leo Bland rand, one of the owners of Tampa Downs, said 100 horses already had been sent here and that more than 500 are expected for the meeting. Myers of Covington, Ky., announced he would appeal from the verdict that makes him liable to imprisonment for a year and fine of $[illegible] on each of two counts. B. G. Brodbeck, former manager of the track, and thirty-eight other former officials face charges similar to those of which Myers was convicted.

The charges were due to operation of pari-mutuel machines at Tampa Downs last Winter.

HOPPE IS NOW CHOICE TO WIN BILLIARD TITLE

New York, Jan. 7 (I.N.S.).—Having won the second block of his title match with Eric Hagenlacher the champion, Willie Hoppe today was leading by a score of 1,040 to 740 and was favored to retain the world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship when the third and final block is played tonight.

The score of the second block was 761 to 240. Hoppe averaged 29 13-19 and Hagenlacher 17 17-19.

ED LEWIS THROWS CLIFF BINKLEY AT ATLANTA

Atlanta, Ga., Jan 7 (A.P.)—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, champion heavyweight wrestler, defeated Cliff Binkley of Ohio in straight falls here last night. He won the first in 7 minutes and 60 seconds with a headlock and took the second in 2 minutes and 55 seconds with a double arms scissors. Physicians said Binkley suffered a broken rib during the first four minutes of grappling.

'Duke' Dunne Chosen Harvard Line Coach

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 7.—R. J. (Duke) Dunne, ex-football captain of the University of Michigan, and son of former Governor Dunne of this State, has been named as line coach for the Harvard varsity eleven.

Arnold Horween, head coach of the Crimson, who resides here made the announcement of Dunne's appointment.

Much of Dunne's work was rendered in the forward wall of the Northwestern eleven when last Fall, and his absence, together with the signing of Coach Thistlethwaite by Wisconsin leaves two holes to fill in the Purple football staff.

Dunne was signed by Horween a year ago, but preferred to remain at Northwestern for another season. He [illegible] years at Michigan from [illegible] 1921, as an end, at which time he finished his grid career [illegible]

GERMANY LOOMS AS DAVIS CUP THREAT

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.)—The reinstatement of Germany as a member of the International Lawn Tennis Association after an absence of thirteen years holds forth promise of a new and formidable Davis Cup threat. Germany's good standing dates from January 1, so that the Teutons will be able to challenge for the historic team trophy for the first time since 1914.

The Teutonic tennis threat is of immediate concern to France, which has dominated European tennis for the past few years, reaching the Davis cup challenge round twice in a row and now being regarded as capable of upsetting America's long supremacy next Summer.

TWIN BILL AT ARENA TONIGHT

Harvard Six Faces Notre Dame; University Club Meets Knickerbockers

By BILL GRIMES.

In the first double header of the season, Harvard will meet Notre Dame and the University Club will open its season against the Knickerbocker Club of New York, this evening at the Boston Arena.

Although this is Notre Dame's first attempt at hockey the team has met with fair success. In the opening game of the season, Chicago shut out the boys from South Bend, 4 to 0 but then Notre Dame went to a 1 to 0, twenty minute overtime game with the Pittsburgh Collegians in Duquesne Gardens. They won their first game against the Nichols Club of Buffalo last Tuesday night, 2 to 1.

Bill Grimes

D. D. Dubois, the former Ottawa University player, is coaching Notre Dame and Manager A. J. Jones has brought a squad of 14 players here for the Harvard game.

Bud Boeringer, who was selected by many of the football experts as the All American centre, is playing on the defense for Notre Dame, while McGrath, one of the fullbacks, is also with the squad.

Against Harvard, Notre Dame will receive its first real test. The Crimson has one of the strongest teams in the college ranks and the South Benders are not holding out any great hopes for a win over Harvard. The visitors are not as well conditioned as Harvard, having only an outdoor rink to work on.

Coach Ned Bigelow will start the same team that opened against Toronto Varsity and will have Joe Morrill in the nets, although Weston Adam is well, doubtless, to need before the close of the game.

The University Club will be represented by one of the finest amateur aggregations in the history of hockey in the city. The team is captained by George Owen, who ranks with the best defense men in hockey. Capt. Owen will have Eddie Mullowney, the former Boston College star on the outer defense, with Ken Marshall, of Melrose, and Dewey, of Dartmouth, as spare. The University Club is fortified with three goal tenders—Ted Learnard, of Dartmouth, Jack Fitzgerald from Boston College and Art Langley, who was a spare goalie on the Olympic team in 1924.

With such an array of forwards as Clark Hodder, the former Harvard centre ice man, Henry Groden, from Boston College, Maury Beals, Harvard; Bud Ladd, who played on the freshman team at Cambridge, and then went out for the crew; Swede Lindley and Vaughn of Yale, the University Club should present an effective attack.

The Knickerbockers have been playing good hockey in the New York amateur league and are looking forward to a victory of the new local aggregation.

FINE TRACK MATERIAL AT LATIN

Coach Fitzgerald Has Abundance of Veteran Material Available

By EDDIE DONDERO

BRIGHTENING a rather drab Winter sport season in the Boston schools is Boston Latin's well-balanced track squad. Many of the raw recruits in the junior, intermediate and senior divisions have forced the veterans into oblivion.

Coach Charles Fitzgerald has divided his practice sessions, each division working out at different times. This prevents any ill feeling between the athletes. The relay team candidates of the senior class condition themselves at University Heights while the other members use the school gymnasium.

The schedule has not been released as yet, but it will extend the Purple-jerseyed outfit several opportunities to make fame.

Captain Richard Hegarty is a 100-yard and relay speed demon who acquired the habit of winning when he was a mite kid. Nobody knows how he does it, but he gets there ahead of everyone else and that's all that counts.

PEER OF DISTANCE MEN.

Scholastic followers well know Ralph Rochon, peer of the 1,000-yarders in New England. He is heavier this season and carries more reserve speed. Rochon stopped the State meet last Winter an unknown. He set his own pace, jogged the distance cleverly and won an easy victory. Now he is out to pen his signature on the record books.

Another consistent point accumulator is William Wallock, a senior. He is a relayist. Coach Fitzgerald intends to enter him in the 300-yard events and the same goes for Bob Sullivan. This combination has done remarkably well to date in the time trails at the Heights while battling against a heavy wind. The heavy gales which sweep the outdoor track are a big handicap to schoolboys.

Joe Dolan, senior 440-yard star, after an all-afternoon work on the B. C. track in a rainy day pointed out to his mentor that he was getting along at a tremendous pace and an outsider who had seen Joe's time "at 30 minutes" when he crossed the worsted.

STAR SHOTPUTTER.

Eugene Sykes an ebony-hued beauty tosser and a 200-pound weight tosser are setting a lad who tosses the 16-pound weight a 35-foot mark. Sykes has entered in two feet on the first place in a dual meet, but he is getting into shape at a tremendous pace and he select class. Stock is good here and bids fair to finish among the leaders.

The smallest and youngest junior on the Fenway team is Frank Wing, thirteen-year-old Chinese boy, who steps around the saucer with the speed of a sprite. The Celestial will undoubtedly shock the experts as soon as the season gets under way. He is an honor student in class, too.

According to present dope sheets James Glynn, Bernard Hermen, George Speck and Arthur Zandilon will line up as the intermediate relayist. B. Tarpler, P. Murphy, S. Brooks, F. Wing and J. Carr loom up as the outstanding nominees for the junior relay positions. The newcomers on hand who have won the esteem of Russ Fitzgerald are Rob Murphy, Jim Skerossol, Edward Horovitis and Mark Krajewski.

FRESHMAN SWIMMING TEAM ORGANIZED AT B. U.

Organization of a freshman swimming team at Boston University is under way, and a schedule is being arranged which will probably include meets with Huntington School, Brookline High, Milton Academy, Brown University freshmen, and M. I. T. freshmen.

THERE ARE SOME REAL LIGHTS ON THE TRACK AT B. L. S.

LITTLE JOE WINS

Tough point to make, but the point is that Joe Dolan, above, seldom is beaten when he runs 600 yards for Boston Latin. The young man on the right should clean up, as the caption writers say. He's Frank Wing.

THEY HAND ALONG THE BATON

This is the intermediate relay team which h as title aspirations. The boys figure to give 'em all a run for the medals. These speedy kids are (left to right) James Graham, Bernard Hormen, George Speck and Arthur Zandeton.

Winter Track Season Opens Saturday

By TED CHANDLER.

WITH all the post season football and post-mortem baseball filling the morning pages during this usually arid sport season, one almost loses sight of the fact that the 1927 track season is upon us.

Starting in Brooklyn Saturday night with the Knights of Columbus games the Winter schedule opens. From that time on activity will be brisk on the various timber paths of the East and every thing points to an exceptionally fine year. The optimism arises from the matters which have disturbed the serenity of track in recent years have been regulated so that repetitions of them is unlikely and that both our own runners and those from foreign countries will be able to display their best wares, free from all manner of scandal and untoward incident.

We have with us today Edvin Wide of Sweden and an important feature of the Winter season is still in the air, namely, whether or not he will participate. His unfamiliarity with indoor running and the fact that if he runs this Winter he cannot run any rule will prohibit his participation this Spring and Summer, may force him to decide as to that.

Ned Hamm

January 22, the Casey games of Boston will be held according to custom and Manager Jim O'Donnell announces that it should be one of the best meets thus far recorded.

February 5, Boston is to be represented in New York at the Millrose A. C. games, when a one-mile relay team of the Boston Athletic Association will compete in a triangular race with the Illinois A. C. and the Chicago A. A. This event should be one of the banner races of the evening, and if the Unicorn a project the team materialises the local athletes stand a fine chance of coming through.

It is hoped that Walter Mulvihill, former Holy Cross flash, will be able to condition himself sufficiently to compete. He announces that he will not run unless he feels that he is in shape, and his conditioning depends on whether or not he can find a track on which to practice. He is now teaching in Portland, Maine.

Four runners from whom the B. A. A. has to pick include Ray Robertson, Edward Blake, Dick Hayward, O'Connor, Darril, Devine and Shelton. Coach Jack Ryder, who holds the reins of the Unicorn outfit as well as those of Boston College, is optimistic about his material and is counting on the appearance of Mulvihill.

SCHOOL SIXES IN 4 GAMES TOMORROW

By TED LYNCH

The "Morning Glory" schedule arranged for tomorrow morning at the Arena calls for five games and has league leaders facing opponents that are of the type which delight in upsetting the favorites.

Dorchester and Eliot, at present tied for the top, may find themselves down a peg or two in the league ladder at the time tomorrow if the would be champions are not up to the standard Dorchester will be called upon to face when while English High will meet the most stubborn of Morning Glory foes, South Boston. The other league games have Latin facing Charlestown while B. C. High meets Commerce in an exhibition affair, and Hyde Park plays Mechanic Arts.

The last of the games to be played, the Dorchester-Brighton fracas, promises to be the outstanding match. Coach Jerry Deeley's Dorchester seniors, because of its large squad, is the favorite.

B. U. FIVE READY FOR TILT WITH NORTHEASTERN

Northeastern hoopsters entertain Boston University five at the Huntington "Y" gymnasium tomorrow night. The clash between these two Boston institutions is strong and a torrid battle is expected.

Northeastern has been going far better than the Terriers of late. The "Y" colleges has only lost one game and his three scoring pitched under its belt. The Terriers have two setbacks on their slate and one victory.

Coach Win Karlson called the Boston University hoopsters out a week before vacation was over to prepare them for this game. He has been drumming the floor himself ever showing the individual stars on the club what team work is like. He has been showing the team new plays and is confident of victory.

The Northeastern school paper announces that victory is certain and Kobera, the "Y" star, promises to shoot ten baskets. In the last two days, three of the Terrier regulars have been begging for the chance to cover Kobera.

There will be dancing after the game. The Northeastern faculty will play between the halves.

BRAVES RECRUIT HAS MILLION DOLLAR LEGS

New York, Jan. 7.—Million-dollar legs have trotted across the footlights, but one pair belong to a man. David I. Barron, who gets his mail at Monroe, Ga. The Boston Braves have a first mortgage on the million-dollar legs for baseball purposes and will take them into training next spring at St. Petersburg, Fla., if nothing more happens in Florida.

The man with the million-dollar legs can run 100 yards in ten seconds flat, not an unusual record by any means, but there are mighty few ten-second men trying to beat it from first to second in either big league.

Barron has exhibited the speed of the million-dollar legs in baseball, football, and the track for Georgia Tech, where he first achieved fame as an athlete. He will be twenty-seven years old June 21 and has been in professional baseball two years starting in 1924. He played with Georgia Tech from 1919 to 1923, and didn't play in 1923. He was Captain of the team in 1922. He plays the outfield, all over it, and isn't particular whether he is right, left or centre gardener. He has been playing them all, and with his speed the million-dollar legs enable him to corral flies in a field and a half without difficulty.

His start was with Jackson of the Cotton States League. He was sold to Charleston of the South Atlantic League in 1925, and from there was purchased by the Braves and finished last season with the Providence Eastern League team. He went to Providence on May 1 and played in 75 games, batting .297 for the season.

Barron gets into football together when the baseball season ends and acts as coach for the Monroe Aggies of Monroe, Ga., until it is time to train for baseball, coaching the baseball and track men as well as the eleven. He had five seasons as halfback on the Tech team.

The coming season will be his first trip to a regular training camp with his big league team, that is, as he modestly writes, "unless traded or ordered to do otherwise." Dave is 5 feet, 11 inches tall and in condition peels off at 178 pounds. He is a red head.

FOOTBALL STAR KILLED IN AUTO SMASHUP

Dayton, O., Jan. 7 (A P)—Vernon Schwab, 20, captain of Stivers High School football team here in 1923, and considered one of the best backfield men among national scholastic players, was killed today in an automobile accident.

Despite the fact Schwab lost his right foot in a hunting accident he continued playing football, starring in the position of guard.

Tex Rickard Will Make Million Out of Big Fight Program

By JACK CONWAY

TEX RICKARD will make more than a million dollars in the promotion of heavyweight boxing matches this year. The harvest of gold ahead for Rickard and his associates surpasses the wildest dreams of any boxing promoter.

The signing of Gene Tunney gives Rickard a corner on the world's leading heavyweights. Jack Delaney, world's best heavyweight champion, is the only one of the big fellows outside of the Rickard fold. He must now either sign with Tex or give up his chance to battle Tunney for the championship.

Jack Conway

Rickard made $566,000 promoting the Dempsey - Tunney bout at Philadelphia last September. This great ring spectacle which attracted a crowd of 136,000 fans from all parts of the world, packed in a $2,600,000 gate which shattered all box office records.

It is believed that when Tunney defends his title for Rickard at the Yankee stadium next September that there will be another $2,000,000 crowd on hand.

The Tunney bout is merely part of Rickard's heavyweight promotion plans for this year. Gene, of course, was the key to the entire situation. With Tunney in line, Rickard was able to attract world wide attention to his heavyweight tournament, the survivor of which he plans to put against Tunney.

RICKARD says Tunney's next opponent will be picked from the following list of boxers:

Jack Sharkey, Jim Maloney, Jack Dempsey, Paolino, Berlenbach, Hansen, Delaney and Renault.

Sharkey is already under contract with Rickard to fight Tunney next September. He assumed the position of logical contender when he crushed Harry Wills last October.

Since Sharkey won over Wills the Jack Delaney boom has kept going steadily forward. Delaney today stands forth as the most serious obstacle in Sharkey's path in his drive to get Tunney. New York fans are with Delaney and they insist that he receive consideration for the heavyweight championship. Delaney's two-round knockout of Bud Gorman strengthened his position as a heavyweight contender.

IT is Rickard's plan to have Paolino, Spanish heavyweight, and Knute Hansen battle at Madison Square Garden on February 7. Tex hopes for Paolino to win in which case the Spaniard will be pitted against Sharkey. If Sharkey scores with a victory, he will be signed to tackle Jim Maloney, his Boston rival.

Berlenbach battles Mike McTigue on January 28 and if he comes through a winner he may later tuse on Malone or Sharkey. It is possible that Delaney and Renault will be signed for an indoor feature.

By this process of elimination it is hoped to have the two survivors of the indoor matches battle at the Yankee Stadium late in May. The title would then be pitted against Jack Dempsey in a bout to be staged late in June or early in July.

BOSTON and New England fans are displaying great interest in the heavyweight situation in view of the fact Sharkey and Maloney are both Hub fighters.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, and Dan Carroll, Maloney's pilot, proved they possess sound judgment in sizing up an acute situation when they signed their boxers with Rickard at a time when most of the fans believed Humbert J. Fugazy would be successful in securing the services of Tunney. Buckley and Carroll were anxious to sign with the promoter who had the first call on Tunney's services. They felt Rickard would secure the champion's services. And they were right.

City Fathers Think Grease Suit O. K. for Big Swim

Los Angeles, Jan. 7 (I.N.S.).—While Mrs. Charlotte Moore Schoemmell was announcing that she would not wear any bathing suit in the Catalina Channel swim, the City Council issued a statement in which it declared that it was without jurisdiction to keep the contestants from entering the swim clad only in axle grease.

The council's action followed a communication last Monday from Robert M. Smithers, Los Angeles resident, who demanded that the council take some action to ban the axle grease suit "on moral grounds and also to protect the swimmers from the giant barracuda."

Prehistoric Pueblo Restored

A PREHISTORIC pueblo, at Flagstaff, Ariz., is being restored by the American bureau of ethnology. The ruin is the largest of many dotting this territory, and it is estimated that in all it contained about thirty-five rooms.

Luncheon Dishes for These Cold Winter Days

By MARTHA LEE

PLANNING luncheon in cold weather is much easier than during the hot and listless days of Summer. The bitter winds of Winter add zest to appetites as well as to life in general, and a good appetite gives to food a flavor and relish impossible to obtain by cookery alone.

Then, too, there is such a variety of dishes from which to choose. What could be more acceptable on a cold or stormy day than a generous bowl of hot soup or chowder? Serve with it crackers or toasted bread.

Cut bread in cubes or in strips about an inch in width and toast in oven until brown and crisp. This is a good way to use stale or broken bread. Nothing more is needed for such a luncheon except dessert.

Scalloped and creamed dishes are always satisfactory, as they can be varied indefinitely, are easily prepared, utilize left-overs, and can often be prepared in the morning, requiring only reheating or baking at noontime. Croquettes, souffles and various forms of toast give further variety to menu.

In homes where the housewife does her own work, it is well to plan to have one dish for the main course, varying it from day to day to avoid monotony.

Scalloped Fish—Three cups cold cooked fish, one and one-half cups milk, two and one-quarter tablespoons flour, one-half cup stale buttered crumbs, one bay leaf, one small slice of onion cut very fine, salt and pepper to taste.

Heat milk with bay leaf, onion and parsley. Melt butter and flour and milk, from which seasonings have been removed, stir occasionally while cooking, until thick. When thickened add salt and pepper, remove bones and skin from fish, turn into baking dish, add sauce, and sprinkle with crumbs. Use stale but dried crumbs. Bake until crumbs are brown.

Salmon Chowder — One fourth pound salt pork, three tablespoons onion three cups boiling water, three cups diced potato, whole, two cups milk, three tablespoons flour, one cup cooked salmon, salt to taste, three tablespoons fat.

Cut pork in very small dice, cook slightly, add onion and cook until onion and pork are brown. Add potato, water, salt and pepper and a very few bay leaves, cook until soft. Heat milk in double boiler, and thicken with flour which has been mixed with an equal amount of soft fat, let cook from ten minutes or more. Separate salmon and remove skin and bones, and add to sauce. Combine mixtures, season and serve.

Scallop Soup—One quart scallops, one quart fresh milk, one pint water, five tablespoons flour, three tablespoons butter, two tablespoons onion, parsley, salt and pepper to taste.

Wash scallops and chop fine. Cook together scallops, onion and pork fat until they begin to turn yellow, add water, and simmer twenty minutes. Heat milk in double boiler, add flour which has been mixed smoothly with butter, and cook until thickened. Combine mixtures, add seasonings and sprinkle with parsley.

Creamed Oysters—Clean, drain and parboil one quart oysters, drain again. Melt four tablespoons butter, add four tablespoons flour, stir until smooth, and gradually add pint hot milk, and cook twenty minutes over fire in double boiler, stirring frequently. The sauce should be quite thick. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Add oysters, and serve on toast garnished with parsley. Plain or stuffed celery would be served with the dish when available.

Cauliflower Souffle—Boil a good-sized head of cauliflower in salted water until soft, separate into flowerets, afterwards a large part of the stem, and place in a baking dish. Pour sauce over it and bake in a moderate oven from thirty to forty-five minutes.

Sauce—Melt one-third cup of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and one cup of milk. Cook until thickened and smooth, then add three well beaten egg yolks, salt, pepper, and set aside to cool. Then fold in three stiffly beaten egg whites and three tablespoonfuls of grated Parmesan cheese. Season to taste.

Tomorrow's chat will be a reply to the many requests for special dishes for the invalid's tray.

Meanwhile, don't forget that today and tomorrow Miss Lucrezia Bori, of the Consolidated Gas Company is demonstrating cereal cookery in the Martha Lee Kitchen at No. 32 Summer street [illegible]

Cordially yours,

Martha Lee

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Will you please tell me if it is proper for a divorcee to be married when she is getting married the second time?

2—If not, what should she wear? She is going to be married in church.

W. W.

NO: it is not proper for a woman marrying the second time to wear the traditional white dress of the first marriage, or a wedding veil or orange blossoms.

2—She usually wears an afternoon dress of some light shade, or a traveling suit or ensemble. This [illegible] lovely brown linen dresses would be very appropriate.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Having received an invitation to a church wedding, should I send a letter of best wishes to the bride, and what would be a nice way of sending it?

W. E. S.

A FORMAL invitation to a church wedding only—that is, to the ceremony and not to a reception or wedding breakfast, afterward—does not require an acknowledgment. But, of course, it is always friendly and gracious to write a note of good wishes to the bride. Tell her of your wish for her happiness always and, through her, send your congratulations to her fiance.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Would you please tell me a nice polite answer for a girl when a boy says something like this, "Thank you very much for the dance, Bess?" This has been my worry at every dance.

Thank you,

BABS.

I KNOW how you feel, Babs, for this is one of those big little questions that come up so often in everyday life. One doesn't want to [illegible] and one doesn't want to [illegible] "I'm a wonderful dancer, Bob," or "I enjoyed that dance so much, Bob" are commonplaces that are really enough to indicate that the pleasure of the dance has been mutual and do indicate that you are a courteous person.

I read in an old-fashioned book the other day that, after the heroine had danced with the hero, she "curtsied and said, with a pleasant smile, 'How well our steps have accorded!' " They certainly have the fragrance of the times of the Virginia Reel—but it is hardly appropriate for our casual dancing!

WHEN A MAN IS CRAZY ABOUT A GIRL HE IS OFTEN FOOLISH—
A WOMAN IN LOVE HAS LITTLE CAUTION—WHILE A MAN IS OFTEN CAREFUL—DO YOU LOVE ME, JOHN?
GA-RUMPH
MY BABY BOY
G-GOSH!
THE WOMAN WHO'S EASY TO GET IS SOMETIMES HARD TO GET RID OF—!
LOVE MEANS MORE TO WOMEN THAN TO MEN

When a MAN is CRAZY about a
He is often FOOLISH.
But when a GIRL is CRAZY over a MAN
SHE usually goes a little MAD.

For a WOMAN desperately IN LOVE is
But little CAUTION,
While a MAN, though deeply in love, is often still CAREFUL.

LOVE means MORE to most WOMEN than
It does to most MEN.
Therefore, WOMEN usually DALLY with a
Proposal before they FINALLY TAKE the man.

USUALLY the WOMAN who is EASY to get is HARD To get RID of. And the one who is HARD to GET is easier to HOLD, because she does not ACCEPT anything till she GIVES her heart.

Dr. Reed Gives Facts on Oysters

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association

YOU can't just now in the middle of the months containing the letter R, which means that you are in the midst of the oyster season.

I eat [illegible] as often as I can afford the price, and in every form in which they are served—luscious raw ones on the half-shell, scalloped, even fried.

I mention this only to show my appreciation not only of their delicious flavor and of their food value, but of their safety.

Take last six months is important because, a year or so ago, there was a sensational report of an epidemic of typhoid due to oysters.

Of course it was all accidental. The growers of the oyster beds as well as the great canning plants are scared in the hunters, still not afraid of it. Few sanitary measures could afford it. The consumer, I couldn't afford it.

It all came about because there was an accidental violation of natural law governing the propagation and culture of oysters.

There are some facts about oysters: Oyster increase in size and in rapidity of growth in proportion to the amount of food available for them. Oysters fatten in fresh water both directly and by encouraging the growth of algae and protozoa, lowest orders of plant life occurring as slime. It is therefore a direct temptation to oyster farmers to collect their oysters from polluted water. The term "good oyster ground" may mean one thing to the sanitarian and quite another to the oyster harvester.

Other factors that affect their bacterial purity are the sanitary conditions under which they are gathered, stored and shucked, the methods of packing, the degree of refrigeration and the time that elapses between gathering and consumption also affect their quality. They also run the same risks of pollution as other kinds of food that are eaten raw or not cooked sufficiently to sterilize them.

"Purifying" is for practical purposes, fecal pollution by man.

This germ is in itself harmless, but the quantity present in water polluted by man varies fairly constantly with the quantity of typhoid, cholera etc. If as human pollution, therefore, that constitutes the greatest danger, and sanitary surveys and inspections as well as microscopical examination are necessary to detect it.

Oysters in heavily polluted water contained far less bacilli in cold weather than in warm.

Household Hints

Oilcloth will be given a new lease of life if wiped over with a rag dipped in a mixture made of turpentine and milk.

Chamois leather should be washed in warm water in which a pinch of baking soda has been dissolved. In this way the leather's softness, which often is lost in the process of washing, is retained.

A mixture of three parts of mercury and one part of prepared chalk will restore plated cruet stands and other articles when the silver is worn off. Also into a paste with warm water. And with a small piece of wash-leather rub the tarnished article until it is bright.

If a cloth is placed over a bowl of freshly made custard no skin will form on the top.

Stale toast, buttered, makes quite as nice a pudding as stale bread and butter.

The Smith Family Tours Europe

By WINIFRED BLACK

THE John W. Smiths are touring Ireland.

They have brought their own touring car and their own chauffeur and you cannot blame them for that. The touring cars over there are a joke, unless you have a big one of your own, and very few people seem to do that.

The best you can do is to get either a glorified taxicab or a little shanty carriage sort of thing with some sort of isinglass shields in which they build up around you—but a chauffeur from America, what terrible times he is having!

The roads are good, comparatively—but he does not know them and he cannot understand a word the natives say to him, not a word. And nobody can understand him. And he wishes he was dead and so does John W. Smiths if they said what they really think.

The chauffeur does not like the hotels and he does not like the road agape. The Smiths are in a terrible pickle. Besides, they do not like Ireland.

They do not like it at all.

They have been to the Vale of Avoca, where Tom Moore lived and sang.

They have stood in the queer old stone church that was built some time before the sixth century, and they have seen the Black Waters below—creepy things, the Black Waters. They really are black, jet black, and they shine like a mirror. When you look at them you keep thinking of all the strange people who have been reflected there, wild warriors in skins and strange medieval kings. The John W. Smiths were a good deal bored by the Black Waters.

They could think of a dozen streams at home a thousand times prettier. There was the Hudson and there was the Columbia and there was the Mississippi if you come right down to it. Oh, the Smiths really could not see anything in the Black Waters to rave over. As for the chauffeur, he would not even set out of the car to go and look at them.

Then the Smiths went to Killarney and they heard all about Tirnanogue—the land of eternal youth at the bottom of the lake, and they listened to the tales of the fairies who haunt the glens at the Meeting of the Waters—and they were bored again—poor things.

They said that when they wanted fairy tales they would read them in a book, thank you, and as for the Lake of Killarney, what was it compared to Lake George or Lake Champlain?

Oh, yes the John W Smiths are seeing Europe—so they think

I don't think they are seeing anything but their own prejudices and their own likes and dislikes.

I wonder if they could not do that just as well at home?

The Love Wrecker by BEATRICE BURTON Author of "Gilded Kisses"

Thrilling Romance of Youth in Boston

CHAPTER XXXIII.

ANN seemed just as saucy and cheerful and cocksure as ever to Honey Lou as she led the way to the dressing room.

Almost the second that One-Armed Annie stepped into it, her gayety fell from her like a shining garment.

The shallow blue-green eyes gazed at Honey Lou's with panic and despair written in them plainly The painted mouth tightened at the corners.

"Honey Lou," she said in a strained whisper, "I've done it this time!"

"Done what?"

"Done for myself, I guess," Ann awkwardly tried to explain.

"What do you you mean?"

"Well—" The bold green eyes dropped, and Ann's voice shook as if she were going to cry. Her lips worked piteously.

Suddenly she stanced up. "Honey Lou," she said, "will you please go to Joe Meadows for me and tell him he's got to marry me! He'll just got to!"

When Honey Lou understood, She was too shocked to speak, although she tried to make her lips form some kind of comforting words. She was sick to her very soul all at once.

"But what makes you think I could do anything with him?" she asked at last. "If he won't listen to you he certainly won't listen to me—"

"Oh, yes, he will!" Ann broke in sobbingly, and seized Honey Lou's arm with her hands. "You're part of the Old Man's family now, and what you say will go with him! You could lose him his job, you see, and he'd do anything before he'd lose that! And besides, he thinks you're wonderful. He has a snapshot of you in the back of his watch."

"Oh, he has, has he?" said Honey Lou to herself with spirit as she marched down the aisle to the shining room. "Well, I'll just set that away from him, while I'm about it!"

She wondered how Joe Meadows had managed to get a picture of her. Then she remembered that she had had a dozen or so of them in her desk upstairs at one time. He must have stolen one of them.

As she reached the bottom of the steps she saw him. He was standing in a corner, and when his black eyes fell on her he came quickly across the dark dirty room toward her—a big handsome fellow with the superb figure of a Greek statue.

A month ago she would have been half afraid of him. But not now—not now that she was Jack's wife. She was as brave as a lioness now.

"How do you do?" she said calmly, looking him up and down with eyes that had scorn in their bright depths.

"Ann Ludlow asked me to come down here and speak to you," she went on, lifting her little chin with its deep dimple. "So here I am. What have you got to say for yourself?"

A slow flush ran under his swarthy skin, and he shook his head with its mane of black hair. "Nothing," he said stubbornly. "Not a thing!" He turned to leave her.

"I should hate," Honey Lou's husky voice flowed on smoothly, "to see you lose your perfectly good job here. And even losing your job might not be the end of it—there are laws, you know."

"What do you want me to do? Get a marriage license? Is that what you're driving at?" he asked in his thick way, after a moment.

"Exactly that," replied Honey Lou in a quick brisk way that showed she meant business. She did mean business, too. She had made up her mind that if Meadows refused to do the decent thing by Ann, she would go straight to "Grumpy" with the sordid truth about them.

She was just going to open her lips to say so when Meadows surprised her by his sudden yielding. "All right," he growled, "tell her I'll do it all right."

Honey Lou hurried upstairs to Ann with the good news, and Ann clung to her and held her tight and told her she was a darling and the "kind of old soul that ever lived."

It was not until weeks and weeks later that Honey Lou remembered that she had forgotten to get the confession of herself from Joseph Meadows.

Angela and she shopped all week. On Saturday noon, on the way home from town, they figured up what they had spent.

Honey Lou's face went white and frightened as she looked at the figures.

"Three thousand dollars, and I haven't bought a single rug or a bedstead yet!" she almost shrieked. "Oh, Angel, Jack will die when he sees the bills!"

Angela only laughed softly. "Darling, Jack hasn't been used to living in a pig pen," she said, "he's been used to a nice house, and he expects to live in a nice one, now that he's married. Three thousand isn't so much!"

Honey Lou sighed. Three thousand dollars seemed like a small fortune to her, as indeed it was.

"Come in and have lunch with me," Angela urged her when they drove to her home, "and afterward I'll teach you how to play bridge and you'll forget all your troubles."

That day Honey Lou met Angela's mother for the first time.

After lunch Angela telephoned Susanne Clemens, and the three of them settled down to teach Honey Lou how to play cards.

"We may as well start right in, paying for money," Susanne said in her sharp way. "Honey Lou will learn the game much more quickly if she knows her mistakes are going to cost her money."

They played all afternoon until five o'clock came and Jack's black and-nickel roadster swung into the driveway next door.

Honey Lou saw it and laid down her cards. "There's Jack—I've got to go," she said. She almost would rather have stayed. She had never played cards before, and she was surprised to find out how fascinating they could be—especially when you were playing for money.

"How much did I lose?" she asked with a feverish little laugh. Her face was flushed with excitement and her eyes were bright.

"Only a couple of dollars" replied Susanne, busy with pad and pencil "That wasn't bad for a beginner."

Honey Lou paid it, and went out into the blue autumn dusk with its clear crispness and its smell of burning leaves.

"No wonder my father loved to play cards!" she thought as she ran around the house to the garage where Jack was putting away his car. "It's more exciting than—dancing, even!"

"I reckon I'm a gambler's daughter, all right," she said to Jack. "I've been playing cards all afternoon, and I've had the time of my life! Lost two of your hard-earned smackolas, too."

"Where did you play?" he asked, his arm around her.

"Over at Angela's house."

Jack sent a startled glance at the lighted windows of the big stone house. "I never knew she played for money!" he remarked. "I thought she would be above doing a thing like that—and I'd rather you didn't do it any more, either, Honey Lou."

ahead. A light moving north—not toward home!

Stanley drove carefully, gaining upon the car which was making rash speed. They passed through a little town on the Post road; Barclay swung around a corner as a line of trucks was crawling through the cross street.

Stan swore ruefully. "Never catch them now. He spotted us—took a chance of being nudged off the road. Any idea where they may have gone?"

She told what Barclay had said about the bungalow. She hadn't mentioned it before; now she felt the situation couldn't be worse. "Hurry, Stan; can't we hurry?"

"He's got a twenty-minute start. I've heard before about that bungalow. Not a place for your cousin, Jean. There's a road—I drove over it once for a lark. Just a wagon track through fields and woods. More direct than going around—if you're not afraid?"

"No, Stan. Only hurry!"

That drive through the night was to be a frightful memory as long as she lived. They climbed and punged, teetered on two wheels, the car was like a demented beast following its own crazy impulses.

But it was built for power and Stanley was a capable driver, talking to the engine cooing it. "Come on, old girl, know your stuff! At a baby over the Alps! Still here, Gay? Pretty soon now."

They stopped before a low stone house set back in enormous grounds. A single light showed dimly in a room toward the rear.

• • •

When Barclay swung around the corner, grazing the front wheels of the first truck in the line, Christine lifted her head, rubbed her eyes, took note of unfamiliar surroundings.

"Alone in Boston!" she burst out. And threw a lighted cigarette at some corner loungers. "Where we going live?"

"Where amateurs can't come crashing the gate on us," he laughed. "You're out for adventure, aren't you? Hanging no room? We haven't begun yet—and I thought you wanted to see life!"

That appealed to her reckless-ness, already fired by excitement and gin. "Course I did! Aren't you the sullen thing! Oil cave man! Only I've got to get home before the family's up."

She felt very sophisticated, very much the experienced adventuress as she walked with Barclay, who would plenty of time to give up Barclay, her imaginary amour gave her a sense of triumph a must as keen as if it had been real.

WHEN ENVY PROVOKES DISAGREEMENT, IGNORE IT

You have purchased a certain article because it pleased you and not because you had sufficient discernment to make a wise selection.

However your associates persist in telling you that you should have bought something else, which they claim to be better.

Are you going to allow yourself to be made miserable just because certain persons prefer something you did not choose to buy?

It is worth a lot to know your own mind.

And you don't have to be pig-headed to have a selective sense either.

If you had reasons which appealed to you and you still can see no reason for preferring a different article, why pay any attention to these remarks!

Perhaps they were made with the sole purpose of arousing dissatisfaction in you.

You may be too enthusiastic in your praise of and your pleasure in the ownership of that article.

Some folks can't bear to see another happy and satisfied.

DAILY SHORT STORY

NOBODY LOVES A BACHELOR

By Andora R. Richardson

FITZH..H CAMERON had come to H : Springs for a definite purpose—unconnected with neither coffee nor his health. For twenty years having successfully evaded nets and nooks of angling mamas, he and suddenly determined to marry—with the disastrous result that no one took him seriously.

Not, of course, that Fitzhugh had recently been in love. He had merely made one or two half-hearted efforts to be regarded as prospective husband and son-in-law, to the complete incredulity of daughter and mother as well. The last episode, the one in which little Ettie Kincard had figured left Fitzhugh feeling like a decaying peach on a stripped limb that couldn't even manage to fall on the head of some unsuspecting passerby. Ettie had flitted into the ballroom with a shallow pated youth without waiting to hear the end of an impassioned sentence. Immediately Fitzhugh had chanced to hear Mrs. Kincard telling beneath the window to some woman she called Miss Wright:

"Did you notice that old Fitz

On the veranda hives of girls swarmed about an occasional male like bees about a rose. In knots sat the old ladies—those who condoned the ways of youth because offspring must be aided in the pursuit of happiness and those who slandered a generation to which they had not contributed. At last Fitzhugh found her apart from the others. Mrs. Henry Hayward! He must claim to have known Henry somewhere—an old gag, but it might work! As he advanced, the woman lifted her eyes, and her lips parted in just enough of a smile to be winning though not bold.

"You will pardon me," Fitzhugh began, "I went to college with a Henry Hayward, and when I saw your name on the register, I couldn't resist asking the clerk to point you out to me. I wonder if you are old friend Hal's wife?"

"I was," the lady sighed. "Dear Henry died two years ago. You knew him at Princeton?"

"Yes, yes, at Princeton," Fitzhugh agreed.

"His college days are very precious to me," Mrs. Hayward murmured, dashing her eyes with a bit of lace.

"Eighteen months ago I lost my wife," Fitzhugh sympathized."

"We were sent to comfort each other," sighed the lady

Comfort was indeed distilling its healing ointment through every hungry pore of Cameron's being.

"Shall we walk toward the mountain while we talk?" he asked, and the woman accepted with a willingness excusable in the light of her devotion to the late Mr. Hayward.

The more Fitzhugh talked of Henry Hayward's exploits at Princeton, the more he fell in love with the hero's widow.

"How selfish I have been" Mrs. Hayward exclaimed at last. "Tell me of your wife. She must have been lovely to have won you."

Fitzhugh pressed himself. "Her eyes were—like yours."

Then Fitzhugh floundered. What were the attributes of dead wives? The man gulped with a fear that the woman seemed to interpret, as grief. Then he launched into his story, warming up as he pictured the romance of his boyhood dreams—as real as thought it had actually been.

In the afternoon Fitzhugh and Mrs. Hayward played tennis, and Fitzhugh was delighted to find his companion as poor a player as he. That night they danced in a way that took Fitzhugh back to the days of his youth.

It was in the midst of the ball room that Mrs. Hayward asked her first startling question.

"Have you any children?" she inquired sweetly.

"I—e-e," Fitzhugh stammered, stepping on the lady's toes and executing a head on collision with another couple. "No—not any!"

Oh, Lord, Suppose Mrs. Hayward had children. What a deplorable step-father he would make—stupid!

"I see a boy that reminds me of my son," she continued.

"Your son," Fitzhugh faltered. "How old is he?"

"He, too, is dead," the bereaved lady replied. "My only child."

"That's fine," sighed Fitzhugh "I mean it's fine you had a son."

There was a moon and the fragrance of jungle flowers, the heavy perfume of the tropic-country. The woman's neck and arms gleamed white in the half-light. Youth lingered in the waves of her hair, in the curve of her cheek. Fitzhugh took one of her hands, lifted the fingers and let them fall against palm. Then he pressed his cheek close to hers.

"I could love you," he said.

Poor Henry Hayward, whoever he was, wherever he was—dead, cold gone! Cameron stopped for a moment to consider the cruelty of death and then he kissed Henry's widow.

"Let's get married" the imperious lover stammered.

On his lips was the salty taste of her tears, his frame swelled against the racking of her sobs Could she be thinking of Henry now.—of Henry?

"You'll find out," she choked. "I might as well tell you. I'm Jennie Wright. I heard about you from Mrs. Kincard at the club the other night. I followed you here. Your man told me where you were. I just wanted a thrill—after all these years taking care of a wealthy old aunt. You don't ever have to speak to me again."

"Try and keep me quiet!" Cameron savagely said, making it a once hard for Jennie Wright to reply.

"But I tricked you," she struggled

"Tricked a trickster," Fitzhugh declared. "It's a tremendous relief to know that there is no ghost of a former husband or wife to reckon with!"

MEDBURY SAYS—

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

HUNDREDS of single women from different States have gotten together and formed an association. They're trying to pass a law making engagement rings non-transmissible.

THEY claim that the men are killing too many birds with one stone.

THE jewelers have a new name for solitaires. They call them warts; they change hands so often.

ONE girl says that the last fellow who gave her a diamond took it back before the next payment was due.

HE didn't even give it a chance to turn her finger green.

THE average girl never envies another dame's engagement ring. The chances are she wore it herself last year.

A SOMERVILLE man claims he can't afford to let his sweetheart wear a diamond. He always pawns it and lets her carry the ticket.

ANOTHER fellow is engaged to six women and makes them take turns with the ring.

THIS is a good way to find out if they care for him. Most girls only fall in love for the jewelry.

A WOMAN never knows how much she loves a man until she has the stone appraised.

GIRLS are becoming smarter nowadays. They look at the diamond first and give you their answer afterwards.

THEY don't want to tie themselves down for only half a carat.

NINETY per cent. of solitaires are sold on the installment plan. If a man has cash he doesn't care to become engaged.

HALF the romance in this country is run on deferred payments.

ONE fellow bought a hundred dollar diamond and made it last him for five engagements.

HE got careless last month and nearly lost the ring. He almost married the girl.

HE finally took it away from her when she wouldn't keep up the interest.

THE best thing to do when you purchase a diamond is to buy two of them. Then you can pawn one and pay off the mortgage on the other.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

How Do Workers Like to Be Treated? Here's Answer

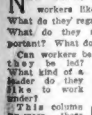
By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—How do workers like to be treated? What do they regard as important? What do they dislike?

Can workers be driven, or must they be led? What kind of a leader do they like to work under?

This column answers these questions.

The answers come, not from me, but from a man who has had mature experience in the actual handling of large forces of employes, Thomas S. Fordham, works manager of the Dyeo-Light Company. He is no theorist. He has learned from everyday experience in shop and factory, from years of mingling with men and earnest seeking to find the best solution to what still is a serious problem in many enterprises.



B. C. Forbes

What does he say?

More pay, but may be improved conditions in his community, his standard of living, his social environment, etc., etc.

"The industry devoting its work on 'human relations' to these subjects will find the key to satisfactory results."

• • •

HE adds:

"There are two other items of importance also to be considered:

"First: When a new employe has been hired, endeavor to sell him on the business. Ordinarily, much is spent advertising the company's name and product to a more or less disinterested public, but very little is spent to advertise that same company and product to a new employe HIS interest should also be aroused and maintained.

"Second: Efforts for the maintenance of health among employes should be as strenuous as those endeavors ordinarily made for the maintenance of equipment."

• • •

IT WOULD be interesting to hear from workers how near this comes to meeting their ideas of how they and their fellows like to be treated.

UNITED FRUIT SUGAR DEPARTMENT IS PAYING

For United Fruit in 1926 the sugar department provided a pleasant surprise by swinging into black ink by the close of the year. Early in January it looked as though the loss from sugar operations, based on price expectations at that time might run up to $2,000,000.

After the 15 per cent. restriction United Fruit's sugar production to taled 1,054,000 bags, against 1,095,000 bags in 1925. In the coming year it looks, without restrictions, easily turn out over 1,500,000 bags.

The success of the Cutler advertising-publicity campaigns in this country and in Europe has been unquestioned. At home, these new selling efforts have largely made possible the good banana year in the face of the worst growing conditions for the fruit in ten years. Undoubtedly the campaigns will be continued aggressively. The outlook for the coming year is extremely satisfactory.

BIG CONTRACTS TO MASS. FIRM

Recent strength of Gleasonite Products Company common stock on the New York Curb has been attributed to the fact that the company has recently received some large contracts from the leading rubber composition soles and heels.

Latest contracts call for 60,000 pairs for one of the largest shoe manufacturers of the country. They also have received a contract to supply the stores of seven shoe stores, one of the major chain store companies that operates approximately 1,000 retail stores and seven shoe manufacturing plants throughout the United States.

Gleasonite is now earning better than $2 a share on the outstanding stock, and with these contracts and others pending, earnings should be even greater.

At this time, according to figures compiled by Rubber Association of America, Gleasonite controls approximately 25 per cent, or nearly one-quarter, of the composition sole business of the entire United States with seven or eight of the largest rubber plants in America in competition.

While it is generally supposed that New England shoe manufacturers and allied business has been on the down side during the past two or three years, Gleasonite of Brockton and Beverly continues to expand in a healthy manner and increase their earnings.

1750 STORES IN HUB CHAIN

First National Stores, Inc., has increased the number of its stores from 1619 prior to the merger of the O'Keefe, Connor and Ginter companies in December, 1925, to approximately 1750 at the present time. This in spite of the abandonment of some stores in localities where there was a duplication of selling effort.

At the same time the meat department, the Arthur E. Dorr division, has increased the number of its store since last February when contract was made for its absorption by First National, from 11 to 28. Growth has been mainly in Greater Boston.

The new Somerville warehouse, which it is proposed to finance with a $2,000,000 bond issue, is not in the neighborhood of $2,500,00. With inventories it will tie up an additional $1,000,000 or $3,500,000 in all.

Of course, there will be no increase, likely rather a decrease in the total volume of inventory carried when the various warehouse facilities are consolidated in the new roof. Present warehouse leases, too, can all be disposed of at a good profit. Consolidating from the new roof warehouse are expected to run into a big return upon the investment.

First National Stores has just received a decision in its favor from the Superior Court which enjoins the Stop & Shop Inc. from using the designation "First National Market Company." The court held that the name was calculated to mislead and deceive they public into believing it was affiliated with a branch of the First National Stores, Inc.

BUSINESS MEN FIND TAX IS BIG FACTOR

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

New England's continued prosperity is reflected in the latest figures issued by the First National Bank of Boston. For the third time within one year this bank's published statement of condition shows total deposits of over $300,000,000. The latest figure of $300,000,000 is 1½ per cent over reported by a New England bank. Its about 30 per cent. of the total clearing house deposits in Boston. The bank's oft-repeated faith in the present and future of New England appears to be fully justified.

Importance of tax problems to business men has been brought most forcibly to the public attention in the past few weeks. Besides the emphasis placed on it at Washington, President Coolidge's message and Secretary Mellon, we have had some forcible right-at-home lessons. All well-informed persons know of the flocking to Florida for legal residence by millionaires attracted by the absence of inheritance taxes, barred by the state's constitution.

M. A. Sullivan Leon M. Conwell

• • •

Certainly the average layman cannot understand why, with vast legal talent obtainable, it would not be easy to make our laws clear as well as just. Where "there is a lot of smoke there must be some fire," is a line frequently quoted in connection with such an outstanding protest as the one from Brockton, Jan. 6, against

Mayor Leon M. Conwell of Somerville, Boston business man, is justly proud of the fact that his city's financial condition is excellent and that the year has been finished without any addition to the funded debt. Mayor Conwell is a director of the Winter Hill Co-operative Bank.

• • •

We also find the famous Newport in "Little Rhody" boasting of one of the lowest tax rates in New England. The rate is $24.50 a thousand. It is greatly aided, of course, by the large number of costly Summer homes. Mayor Mortimer A. Sullivan believes Newport ought to seek publicity by advertising in metropolitan newspapers. No doubt it has much to commend it that might be more frequently brought to the attention of the general public.

• • •

Wbh Chicopee Manufacturing Co. and Dwight Manufacturing Co. considering removal of plants to the South, the threat of Chicopee's industrial prosperity loomed big in the annual message of Mayor Shea. Incoming Republican government and Mayor stand pledged for retrenchment that will be reflected in a lowered tax rate, in order that the taxation burden may not be a factor in consideration of new locations for textile concerns.

• • •

Instead of "frittering away time" in futile quests, incoming legislators ought to find out what can be done to relieve present-day taxtangles and then do it. This Commonwealth is setting a commendable example in achieving economy, and it hardly needs to be pointed out that a good many cities and towns are doing the opposite.

• • •

The man who wrote the following in the Montana Natural Resource Bulletin ought to be drafted if he has much more of this clever line in store: "Some time ago 560 acres were stolen from Miss Butterfield & Butler Skunk Farm, near Hardin, Mont. Officers started in media search for the thieves, but despite the fact that the trail should have been odoriferous enough to follow, it was not. Then Montana air and soil is of such nature that it quickly dissipates any elements popular to the posting."

• • •

After all, consider the person who lives just across the border of Boston proper and has to pay nearly twice as much for his electricity as his next door neighbor in Boston. He is apt to agree with Representative Hancock, who thinks rates are too high in some sections, and with Governor Fuller, who expresses the belief in emphasis in his annual message and with this writer, who embodied the same idea in this column months ago.

• • •

After all, the companies that can be shown toh ave been earning more than the legal "8 per cent." might be considered by some arm guilty of careless bookkeeping. It ought to be easy for any clever management to sink "excess earnings" back into the property.

CITIES IN QUEST OF FURTHER FINANCING

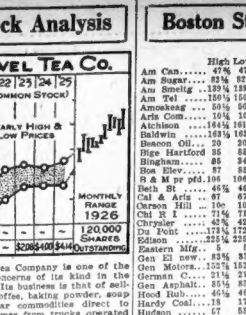
Gardner will receive bids until Jan. 11 for $100,000 loan payable Nov. 8.

De Forest Radio

Receivership of De Forest Radio Co. will be lifted within a few days.

Stock Analysis



Jewel Tea Company is one of the largest concerns of its kind in the country. Its business is that of selling tea, coffee, baking powder, soap and similar commodities direct to the consumer from trucks operated over regular routes.

This business is done in nearly all the cities and towns between the Rocky and the Allegheny Mountains.

Net profits during the ten years ended in 1925 averaged about $6.25 per share annually on the preferred stock. The 1925 earnings were equal to $18.32 per share on the preferred stock as compared with earnings of $23.49 in 1924.

During the first 28 weeks of 1926 net income was double that of the corresponding 1925 period and was equal to $19.28 per share on the preferred stock. Total sales during the first 44 weeks were equal to $31,211,448, which compared with a figure of $31,528,817 in 1925.

At mid-year in 1926, the company was in an excellent financial condition with current assets exceeding current liabilities by nearly 3 million dollars. The company has no mortgage or funded debt.

Dividends on the preferred stock were paid from 1916 to 1919 after which they were suspended until April, 1925, when they were resumed at the full 7 per cent. rate.

The accumulated payments due on the preferred stock have been reduced noticeably in the last two years. On the common stock there have never been any dividends.

ILEANA, NICKKY OFTEN SCUFFLE

not be hurried. I am going to eat my breakfast first."

And since that was the message that Ileana meant to convey to the waiting "courtiers," it looked as though the representatives of Chicago's rich and power-counted for little or nothing in royalty's scheme of affairs.

THEN SHE HURRIED

However, on the other side of the doors, matters took a far different aspect. For the Queen, having gulped down her coffee, arrived at the breakfast table, proceeded to hurry the unfortunate waiter in a manner which was anything new to him. She set the whole retinue by the ears, so to speak, in her efforts to get the meal over and done with, without losing the outward appearance of regal dignity which is the "Quick! Quick!" she said, waving her grapefruit.

"I don't want that—there's no time!" With which words she hastily gobbled—if such a word dare be used in connection with royalty—her oatmeal, and gulping half a cup of coffee, dashed out of the dining room like any humble commuter on his way to the eight ten train, chewing a mouthful of toast as she went. But when she appeared, she was as composed and unruffled as any Queen need be, with no traces of unseemly haste in evidence.

Perhaps one of her liveliest interests in the situation in Chicago's society world upon her arrival—for she was keen enough to grasp at once the social strife and struggle that was going on over her presence more or less surreptitiously—and such a struggle that as it occasioned behind the guarded doors of the royal apartments!

DRESSED FOR OPERA

"The opera? What is it like? What does it mean here? How long does it last?" She bombarded several trusted commissaries with queries as to just what position it held in the social existence of our city. It is significant to note, too, that upon her unseemly appearance at the performance of "Aida" she was dressed more formally and more brilliantly than for any other during her stay—in fact, I might whisper that she really exerted herself to do it honor by dressing in her most gorgeous gown and wearing her famous Russian crown of diamonds, pearls and sapphires.

I might whisper, too, that when she left Boston she carried with her to her in her dressing room, resting on its green velvet cushion studded with tiny diamonds, she could not repress a sigh.

"It's so heavy," she said. "I'm sure my head will ache."

If it did, no one guessed it, for the beaming smile on her pretty face all during the long hours of the opera and the supper that followed never once gave way to an expression of boredom or pain.

The sixth article of this series will appear tomorrow telling more about the private life of Ileana, the Crown Princess, and of the Queen's behavior in her rare moments of seclusion.

RIPLEY VIEWS ATTACKED

Suggestion oby Prof. W. Z. Ripley of Harvard of compulsory publicity in accounts of industrial corporations was criticized by H. Bradley Walker of R. H. Macy & Co. in a speech at St. Louis.

Mr. Walker said compulsory publicity substitutes the will of a sovereign agency for the business judgment of the corporation proprietorship in corporate enterprises. He suggested that Prof. Ripley's plan was made in behalf of the small shareholder who sometimes finds corporations' reports obscure and unsatisfying.

"Unless applied to all business regardless of size or character, it would probably constitute class legislation," said Mr. Walker. He pointed out that unless full details can be revealed without competitive danger it probably violates the due process clause of the Constitution.

Mr. Walker said that were auditing without complete expert accountants' examination it is highly inefficient and standardization is almost impossible. "The balance sheet," he added, "is merely 'an instantaneous picture' and the income account only a record of past performance. True valuation is only an ideal monetary concept. The greatest of all industrial risks is management.

"More figures cannot help the theory of capacity, ability and integrity of management. Recruitment of new capital is today a problem of dealing fairly and squarely with the small stockholder. We cannot eliminate the risk in the great risk-bearing element—common stock. The purchaser cannot always be sure. His real

Falsest Economy to Keep the Navy Below Par

It Is as If a Rich City, in a Land of Thieves, Refused to Maintain a Police Force

The Federal Government finds itself with a surplus of nearly five hundred million dollars.

The House of Representatives proposes to use this vast sum of money to reduce the national debt, although the debt is ALREADY being reduced SIX HUNDRED MILLION dollars this year.

Meanwhile the Navy is being starved to death.

It is as if a rich city, in a land of thieves, refused to maintain a police force.

The people will find the facts startling enough when they thoroughly understand them.

The "Naval Disarmament Treaty" of 1921 at Washington affected only battleships and battle-cruisers, the types in which the United States was ahead.

There was no agreement to let up on construction of other kinds of warships. The race to build them has continued, with the United States near the rear.

Read the figures submitted to the House Military Committee by Admiral Richard W. Eberle and Captain Arthur J. Hepburn, of the Navy.

Since 1921, here is the record of new warship construction among the great powers:

Nations.	Warships.	Tonnage.
Japan	101	333,201
England	37	285,795
France	95	221,825
UNITED STATES	16	120,909
Italy	16	102,207

We have barely kept ahead of Italy. Great Britain and France have outbuilt us TWICE and Japan has outbuilt us nearly THREE times.

Now we learn from Admiral Eberle that twenty-one cruisers, costing three hundred million dollars, must be built if we are to match Great Britain in cruiser strength, and fourteen cruisers, costing two hundred million dollars, if we are to match Japan.

The present budget does not contain funds for building even the THREE cruisers authorized by Congress two years ago, in 1924.

The Government has not kept faith with the people, for when we destroyed our magnificent battleships and battle-cruisers after the Washington Treaty, we were promised a fleet equal to any in the world.

Even the fleet we have is under-manned and under-maintained. The annual report of the Secretary of the Navy tells the story.

On the rolls of the Navy are 5,160 line officers—all that can be paid with the appropriation from Congress, though Congress "authorizes" 5,499 officers. Congress "authorizes" eight-six thousand men, but provides money for only eighty-two thousand.

The shortage of trained officers is going to be even greater. By law each Senator and Congressman is "authorized" to appoint FIVE boys a year to the Naval Academy, but there is only enough money to educate THREE a year.

The aircraft carriers Saratoga and Lexington will finally be completed this year, late because of niggardly annual appropriations by Congress. It will require three thousand men to man them. These men must be taken off existing ships, and an entire destroyer squadron put out of commission because Congress has granted no additional crew for the new aircraft carriers.

Navy yards and naval bases, the Secretary tells us, are in a deplorable state of disrepair.

What is the influence in Washington at work to cut down the size of the Navy, impair its efficiency and break its morale by making it work under intolerable conditions?

Telling It to Dave

Senator Walsh's Mail Is Heavy—As It Should Be If Government Is to Be Truly Representative

Washington dispatches say that Senator David I. Walsh's mail is running heavier than ever. Letters are arriving at the Massachusetts man's office by the bagful. He is receiving more mail than any other Senator and more than all the other Senators on his corridor of the third floor of the Senate office building.

This is proof that as far as Senator Walsh is concerned government is truly representative. Massachusetts folks are writing to Dave to tell him how they feel on public questions and what they want and don't want in the way of laws.

The voters do not hesitate to make their wants known to a true democrat of the Walsh type. As a result, the Senator knows public sentiment in his State as well as, if not better than, any of his colleagues. He is able to REPRESENT his constituents, which is what the fathers of the Republic intended all the Senators and Congressmen should do.

Senator Walsh has just presented a resolution for legislation to remove the present radio chaos. Radio fans have been taking their troubles to Dave. He knows that radio reception in Bay State homes is a bigger problem in those homes than whether Graustark shall have self-determination—and he acts accordingly.

Senator Walsh works for results. This accounts for his popularity. He is invariably right on the big issues. He keeps in touch with the people. He does not stalk with his toga wrapped forbiddingly about him. He gets the letters and, as some of those who have been dropped from public life now realize, he gets the votes.

Senator Walsh's correspondents have the right idea. Having paid two dollars for the right to vote, they toss in a two-cent stamp and a few minutes of their time giving their Senator some real information.

TODAY IS FLOWER OF THE YESTERDAYS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

On the walls of the Southwest Museum in California is inscribed the Spanish motto: "Manana Flor de Sus Ayeres," which translated means, "Tomorrow shall be the flower of all its yesterdays."

The good and the bad of life come by way of a piling up.

The volcano and the coral reef stand for two conceptions men have of the way success, character, achievement and ability come.

The volcano idea is that they come suddenly, all at once.

The coral reef idea is that they are built up a little at a time, as the coral islands rise from the additions of infinitesimal polyps.

Exceptions seem to favor the first idea; the broad sweep of averages speaks for the second.

Monks in the Hospice San Bernardino above Lugano in Italy found in the visitors' book the following:

"August 5, 1910. Benito Mussolini."

Mussolini was then a mason engaged in repairing an old house in Lugano.

Through a checkered career of many activities Mussolini rose to his present position.

Newspapers told, the other day, that John D. Rockefeller was celebrating the date when he received his first job—an humble one.

Both of these men, who have risen high, are not ashamed to look back to their building times.

Today, as well as tomorrow, is the flower of its yesterdays.

If you are thinking of writing your autobiography, I offer as its title, "The Sum."

And for the title page the line, "You are the sum of all your endeavors."

Growth comes from trying what is at present impossible.

Ability comes from stretching for things out of reach.

Character comes by way of trying to act what we want to be.

If you but endeavor enough time will bring its accumulation of experience, the yesterdays will offer their ripening wisdom, and the past will have built, a little at a time, an elevation solid and lasting.

The Evil That Men Do Lives After Them

The "Carbarn Slayers" Have Gone; They Leave Behind Those From Whom Have Been Taken the Very Heart and Soul and Spirit

"The evil that men do lives after them."

Out in the vague, vast reaches of space whose farthest edges rim Eternity, the souls of three young men are fleeting today; gone from the husks that were once their living bodies and that the State seared in payment of the debt for murder owed the People by John J. Devereaux, Edward J. Heinlein and John J. McLaughlin.

On what shore their journey will end—if it has not yet ended—is in divine hands; and what their lot is, or may be, in the great uncharted Beyond, can be nothing in this sphere excepting matters for speculation.

So far as they are concerned with human existence, however, their depredations, their remorses, their hopes, their sorrows, joys and pains have run their courses, and the departed three, each with his debt paid in the eyes of law, are now at peace, insofar as any man can tell.

But—"The evil that men do lives after them."

Over Caesar's corpse as it lay in the Roman Forum—back nearly two thousand years ago—Mark Antony, under the influence of Shakespeare's facile quill, uttered this truism as part of a funeral oration learned by every schoolboy and girl in the land.

And, as it was true that half-century prior to the coming of the Savior, so it is true today when young men lose their wisdom and engage in crime that ultimately takes only their lives, while from their mothers and fathers, sisters, brothers, sweethearts, wives and all related, there are taken the very heart and soul and spirit.

The "carbarn slayers" have gone. The electric chair has taken its toll. But the evil lives after them and is visited upon these:

Their three mothers, bent and bowed in sorrow.

Two of their fathers, broken and shamed, avoiding their fellows who would comfort them.

Two innocent children, now fatherless, who will grow some day to know.

Their young mother, made a widow and fearful of the time when they shall reach the age of understanding.

Sisters and brothers, who, treading themselves the straight path, feel keenly the weight of disgrace on their young shoulders.

And the widow of the man murdered, a woman old and poor, thrown on her own resources in her declining years when she should have peace and rest.

Theirs are the hearts and souls that really died when 2,000 volts of electricity, surging through thin strands of wire, took away for the law the lives of Edward J. Heinlein, John J. Devereaux and John J. McLaughlin.

They are at rest, but ——

"The evil that men do lives after them."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE Bruces were terribly sorry for their country cousins. So they invited them to come to town, eat Thanksgiving dinner and spend the week-end.

Now they wish they hadn't.

For what these Country Cousins did to the Bruce domicile was a crime.

They smashed the phonograph records and put the radio out of commission. They burned holes in the Chinese rug and broke the best cut glass dish. N' polished their shoes on the great towels and ended up by borrowing $35 which Papa Bruce will never see again.

"That's gratitude for you," say the Bruces. "Every time you try to do something for people that's the thanks you get—"

One hears a good many remarks like that at this time of the year. This is the season when we're supposed to do things for our needy brothers and we naturally expect a proper show of gratitude and appreciation in return. But do we get it?

Well, maybe so—but the chances are about 999 to 1,000 that we don't. Whereupon we promptly make loud, peevish complaints about ingrates. But it never occurs to us that there's any fallacy in our own line of thought.

The Hindus think there is. They have quite a different idea about gratitude. They believe that the one who should be grateful is the one who GIVES, not the one who gets.

Rabindranath Tagore tells about the Hindu ideal.

No Word for Thanks.

"It is a matter of comment by Europeans," says he, "that we use no word like 'thanks' in our own language for expressing gratitude, and they jump to the conclusion that our character must be free from that troublesome feeling. But the fact is that in our society the obligation of the giver of help is held to be stronger than that of the recipient. On him who has acquired learning is cast the duty of giving to others—that is not taken as a favor done by teacher to pupil.

The offering of hospitality, even to the casual visitor, is incumbent on the householder for his own sake. Each of the domestic ceremonies, from the birth celebration to the funeral, is but an expression of the debt which each member owes to his community."

Does this seem a strange ideal? It isn't strange according to the Hindu code which aims always toward spiritual progress and liberation. Liberation from what? From selfishness, jealousy, greediness, enmity and all the host of evil spirits that hinder and hurt the inner man. So it comes that to the Hindu the imperative law of Renunciation doesn't imply the unhappy thing that it has come to mean to us. It means the Way of Life and it influences his every act. That is why the Hindu says that the Giver should be grateful rather than the one who receives. For the one who receives may be richer by money or food but the Giver is richer by spiritual growth and freedom.

Wealth Dangerous.

"Wealth is dangerous," says the Hindu, "for unless wisely used it puts fetters on the soul. The very wise man who does not give himself generously, becomes bound in the fetters of pride. The rich man is in bondage to his houses and lands and to the comforts which minister to his pampered body. He becomes unable to live joyously, generously and carelessly as a free man should do. The only safety lies in renouncing one's own control and in sharing one's possessions. Give—and be grateful that you can give, for thereby is your soul preserved alive."

This is the theory which underlies Socialism, Communism and Bolshevism. Most of us think of these various "isms" as horrid devices which would rob rich men of their hard-earned wealth and distribute it to lazy vagabonds. But although in practice these ideas may work harm and injustice, a true and noble ideal lies behind the plan for communistic sharing of property—an ideal which aims to give the rich man greater profit than his wealth can ever give him.

The ideal lay behind the teachings of that other Oriental—Jesus Christ. But how far we have departed from the spirit of His philosophy!
